Chatter

For September 7, 2015

'I always look for an excuse to hang out and have a beer and a burger.... Right now I have to be in shape, just until February, and then I'm going off the rails.'

—MATT DAMON, on staying fit for his upcoming films, to Entertainment Tonight

'We're meant to be.'

—CHANNING TATUM, showing off his new rescue horse Smoke, on Instagram

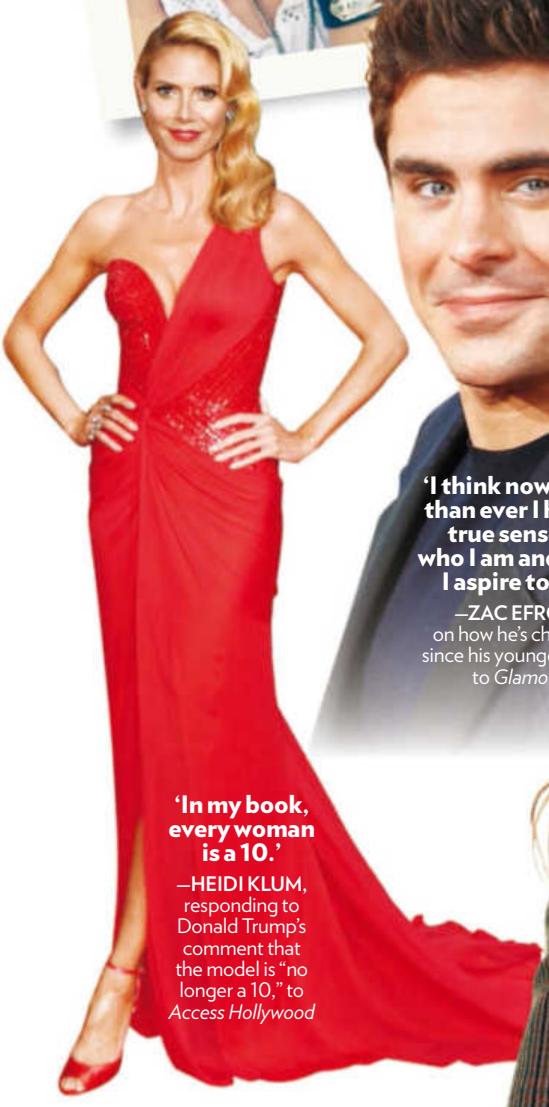

'What doesn't kill you only makes you blonder.'

—MIRANDA LAMBERT, debuting her new platinum hairdo (and nodding to her own lyrics!) on Instagram

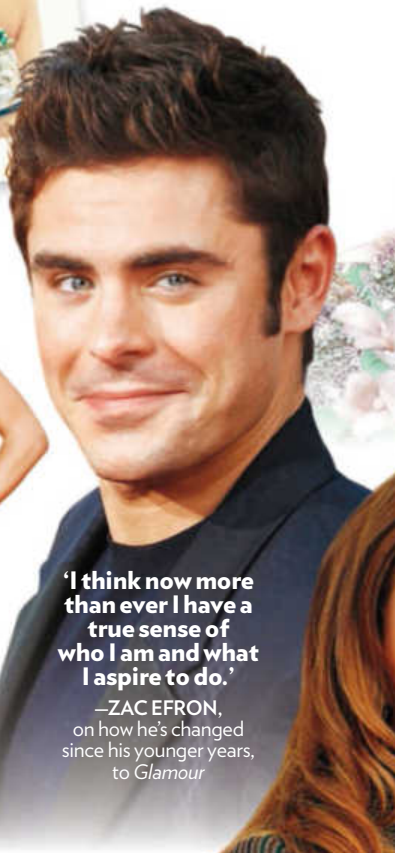

'I'd love to be in a love story! How about some of that?'

—LUPITA NYONG'O, who says she's also "dying to be in a comedy," to People

'In my book, every woman is a 10.'

—HEIDI KLUM, responding to Donald Trump's comment that the model is "no longer a 10," to Access Hollywood

'I think now more than ever I have a true sense of who I am and what I aspire to do.'

—ZAC EFRON, on how he's changed since his younger years, to Glamour

'I got a divorce, and I felt like I finally started my career.'

—OLIVIA WILDE, on when she stopped caring about what others thought of her, to Elle

Q&A

Lake Bell

The actress, 36, stars in the action-thriller* No Escape *(Aug. 26)

Now that you have a baby daughter [Nova], did that change how you play a mom in this film?

I did feel a responsibility to be a mama bear on-set. When you have a little one, your only mission in life is to protect this helpless, sensitive creature. That's primal. I can relate to that.

When are you happiest?

My happy place is holding my daughter and husband [Scott Campbell] in the same hug. I consider it such a privilege, and I know that I'm lucky. I never want to take it for granted. —JEFF NELSON

The three American heroes who stopped an apparent terror attack—Alek Skarlatos, Spencer Stone and Anthony Sadler—have been pals since boyhood.

Editor's Letter

This week we were faced with two irresistible cover options: the inspiring story of the three brave American friends who faced down a gunman on a train in France and another Duggar bombshell, wherein disgraced son Josh admitted to cheating on his wife, Anna. We decided to give the American Heroes cover to subscribers (after all, they received a Duggars cover just last week). But we put the Duggars on newsstands, because so many of us can't get enough of that family saga. Of course, you'll find both stories inside this issue. And both are examples of People at its best, bringing you inside the lives of the world's most intriguing newsmakers.

The Duggars' life after scandal.

'God, please grant this family some peace' Connie via people.com

For August 31, 2015

The Duggars

Jessa, the most important people will be there to support you with their love and faith. While nothing is the same now, enjoy the excitement of your upcoming birth with those [there for you]. Know there are others out in the world who care and will be praying for you as well.
Geena via people.com

I pray that some of these kids find the courage and strength to break away from Jim Bob and Michelle.
Ann via people.com

Jessa gets to have her baby with some sense of privacy instead of being exposed, commented on and ridiculed by the world on national television. You'd think, after the scandal, that she would be happy about that. What this family needs is peace, not more publicity.
Elara via people.com

Jimmy Carter

Mr. Carter is the blueprint for how former Presidents should conduct themselves. I'm sorry he faces such a grim diagnosis. Mr. Carter, you are in my prayers.
Deb E. via people.com

Frank Gifford's Death

I think Kathie Lee's attitude says it all. She is probably the main reason that her children will cope well with this. They truly are blessed to not only have each other, but to have had such a great family for so long.
Keli via people.com

For August 24, 2015

Jen and Justin

This time Jen is truly loved. Wishing her the best!
Cruz Nelson via e-mail

Unlike most actresses in Hollywood, who jump from marriage to marriage, Jen proved that she is one classy lady and held out for the right man. I applaud her and wish the happy couple many years of wedded bliss!
Cynthia Brown Franklin, Tenn.

Thank you, Jen and Justin, for giving us hope for love in the midst of other famous couples splitting up.
Sandy Stephenson via e-mail

Eliza O'Neill

I am sending prayers for the O'Neill family. I had a student with Sanfilippo syndrome. I know the heartbreak the family experienced and how hard it was for all of us to watch him lose the skills he once had.
Chrissy via people.com

These are the kinds of stories I like to read—real people dealing with real-life issues. I will pray for this family and hope they find a cure!
Debbie via people.com

Khloé Kardashian

Good for Khloé for changing her lifestyle and hitting the gym. Working out changes both the mind and spirit.
Anne via people.com

She looks amazing. You see all of her hard work in the dress she wore to Kylie's 18th-birthday party.
Sofia via people.com

Khloé Kardashian was always a beautiful girl, no matter what size she was. Now she looks incredible.
Tammy via people.com

Correction In our Aug. 24 Puzzler we misspelled Olive Oyl, the name of Popeye's wife. People regrets the error.

Khloé Kardashian lost 35 lbs.

COZY COMBINATIONS

Fall brings with it beautiful weather, relaxing evenings in, and the cozy combinations we love. As the days get shorter, Design Mom blogger Gabrielle Blair finds ways to make each moment with her family count, as well as perfect pairings that nourish her family and herself. Brought to you by AVEENO® and Walgreens.

NAPKINS & NOTES

With school back in session, everyone's schedule gets a bit more crammed. Sweet notes and school lunches pair perfectly to say, "I love you and I am thinking of you."

SOFT & SWEET

I look forward to crisp fall evenings under a soft cashmere blanket with a glass of warm cider—it's an indulgent combination.

MANI & PEDI

The new crop of rich fall nail colors are a great reason to pamper yourself with a manicure and pedicure. Added bonus: the beauty boost will help you relax.

DYNAMIC DUO

This time of year, I make sure to use skincare everyday that nourishes and hydrates. AVEENO® DAILY MOISTURIZING Body Wash and Lotion offer 2X the nourishment* for beautiful, healthier looking skin.

BUBBLES & BOOKS

I unwind after a busy week by dipping into a warm bath. Add a good book, and the two combine to recharge your batteries.

5,000 POINTS when you spend $25 or more on participating AVEENO® products*

The "so excited" cover girl's fiancé, Joe Manganiello, peruses his copy.

PRETTY IN PINK

Here comes the bride! Sofia Vergara covers the Fall 2015 issue of Martha Stewart Weddings, dressing up in dreamy Vera Wang (right) and Rosa Clará (inset) gowns and discussing her upcoming nuptials to Magic Mike XXL's Joe Manganiello, who proposed late last year. The Modern Family star says she wants "a wedding where the guests are going to have fun," and where they're going to have a lot of cake. "Cake is my favorite thing. So the cake table is going to be superspecial, a big wedding cake and lots of desserts," she adds. However, at the end of the day, "it's about creating memories that you're always going to cherish," she says. "That's what's important." Get the Fall 2015 issue of Martha Stewart Weddings on iPad Aug. 28 and on newsstands Aug. 31.

VIPS: VERY IMPORTANT PANDAS!

Washington, D.C.

Aug. 22 was a "challenging night" for the Smithsonian's National Zoo officials but a joyous one when giant panda Mei Xiang (left) gave birth to twin panda cubs. Caretakers suspected the 17-year-old giant panda—already a mother of two—might be pregnant following an Aug. 19 ultrasound, but the double delivery was a total surprise. The cubs were born five hours apart, according to the Washington Post, with zoo officials adding that giant pandas give birth to twins about half the time. The Smithsonian called the birth "historic" and said that as of Aug. 24, "our panda cubs are doing well."

Chronic Idiopathic Constipation (CIC)

"IT'S THE SAME OLD STORY. I'VE TRIED LAXATIVES, BUT THE CONSTIPATION STILL COMES BACK LIKE A HEAVY WEIGHT."

Proactively manage your recurring symptoms with LINZESS®

If you're more than occasionally constipated, you may need something other than laxatives. Maybe it's time to talk to your doctor about your chronic constipation symptoms, and ask about LINZESS, a once-daily capsule approved for adults to help manage Chronic Idiopathic Constipation. "Chronic" means the constipation is long-lasting or keeps coming back. "Idiopathic" means the cause is unknown. LINZESS works differently from laxatives. It is thought to work in two ways: by helping to calm pain-sensing nerves*, and by accelerating bowel movements. LINZESS may relieve your symptoms by allowing you to have more frequent and complete bowel movements that are easier to pass.

Bottom line, if your chronic constipation symptoms keep coming back, ask your doctor about LINZESS today.

*This was seen in animal studies and the relevance to humans is not known.

Who is LINZESS for?

Prescription LINZESS® (linaclotide) is for adults with CIC.
It is not known if LINZESS is safe and effective in children.

IMPORTANT RISK INFORMATION

- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age. It may harm them.
- You should not give LINZESS to children 6 to 17 years of age. It may harm them.
- Do not take LINZESS if a doctor has told you that you have a bowel blockage (intestinal obstruction).

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.FDA.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Before you take LINZESS, tell your doctor:

- If you have any other medical conditions.
- If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if LINZESS will harm your unborn baby.
- If you are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if LINZESS passes into your breast milk.
- About all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Side Effects

LINZESS can cause serious side effects, including diarrhea, the most common side effect, which can sometimes be severe. Diarrhea often begins within the first 2 weeks of LINZESS treatment. Stop taking LINZESS and call your doctor right away if you get severe diarrhea during treatment with LINZESS.

Other common side effects of LINZESS include gas, stomach-area (abdominal) pain, swelling, or a feeling of fullness or pressure in your abdomen (distension). Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away. These are not all the possible side effects of LINZESS. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

In addition, call your doctor or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away if you develop unusual or severe stomach-area (abdominal) pain, especially if you also have bright red, bloody stools or black stools that look like tar.

This information does not take the place of talking to your doctor about your medical condition or your treatment.

What is LINZESS?
LINZESS is a prescription medication used in adults to treat irritable bowel syndrome with constipation (IBS-C) and a type of constipation called chronic idiopathic constipation (CIC). "Idiopathic" means the cause of the constipation is unknown. It is not known if LINZESS is safe and effective in children.

What is the most important information I should know about LINZESS?
- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age. It may harm them.
- You should not give LINZESS to children 6 to 17 years of age. It may harm them.

Who should not take LINZESS?
- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age.
- Do not take LINZESS if a doctor has told you that you have a bowel blockage (intestinal obstruction).

What should I tell my doctor before taking LINZESS?
Before you take LINZESS, tell your doctor:
- If you have any other medical conditions.
- If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if LINZESS will harm your unborn baby.
- If you are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if LINZESS passes into your breast milk. Talk with your doctor about the best way to feed your baby, if you take LINZESS.
- About all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins and herbal supplements.

How should I take LINZESS?
- Take LINZESS exactly as your doctor tells you to take it.
- Take LINZESS one time each day on an empty stomach, at least 30 minutes before your first meal of the day.
- Swallow LINZESS capsules whole. Do not break or chew the capsules.
- If you miss a dose, skip the missed dose. Just take the next dose at your regular time. Do not take 2 doses at the same time.

What are the possible side effects of LINZESS?
LINZESS can cause serious side effects, including:
- Diarrhea is the most common side effect of LINZESS, and it can sometimes be severe. Diarrhea often begins within the first 2 weeks of LINZESS treatment.

THE NEW BACHELOR BEN HIGGINS

'I'M READY TO FIND MY WIFE'

BY AILI NAHAS

EXCLUSIVE People EXCLUSIVE

WITH HIS BABY-FACED smile and sweet-as-pie demeanor, Ben Higgins was a front-runner on Kaitlyn Bristowe's season of The Bachelorette until he was sent home, heartbroken, before the final two. Luckily for his legions of adoring fans, the 26-year-old software salesman is back—and this time, he's the one handing out the roses. Higgins talked to People about his dream girl and why he's hoping this "untraditional" form of dating will bring him true love.

"The Bachelor is untraditional, but that doesn't mean it won't work," says Higgins (below with Bristowe).

Any reservations about signing on to do the show? I gave myself fair time to think about it. I wanted to weigh the pros and cons, but when it came down to it, I realized this is a really cool opportunity, so I said, "Yes, let's go for it!" I'm excited and I'm ready.

Thoughts on the Fantasy Suite? The stigma behind it is that it has to be all about → the physical intimacy. However, it's not all about sex to me. My faith and values will direct me.

CRAIG SJODIN/ABC; INSET: FELICIA GRAHAM/ABC

"Kaitlyn is an amazing person," says Higgins (left, with Bristowe on a date; inset, after he was sent home).

You've admitted you felt unlovable. Do you still have insecurities?
They'll always exist on some level. But I think the right person can help me conquer them by supporting me and making me feel loved.

'I'M EXCITED TO FIND A BEST FRIEND AND PARTNER TO SPEND MY LIFE WITH'
—BEN HIGGINS

You had strong feelings for Kaitlyn. Are you completely over her?
I was falling in love with Kaitlyn. But Shawn and I are good friends, and seeing how happy he is and how happy she is allowed me to move on and build a relationship with both of them as friends.

Who is your celebrity crush?
Blake Lively is somebody I've always been attracted to. She's the all around good girl. And I wouldn't be true to myself if I didn't say Jennifer Aniston.

You're 6′4″. Does that ever give you trouble in the dating department?
My girlfriend in high school was 5′3″. I've dated shorter people; it makes for good pictures!

Did you get any tips from past Bachelors?
Sean Lowe gave a lot of good advice based on faith. He said stay true to yourself and stay true to the man you want to be.

What do you hope for at the end of this experience?
Ideally, I would be proposing to somebody. I'm not fearful of getting married. I want to find that person to share my life with as soon as possible.

JENNIFER LAWRENCE & CHRIS MARTIN
WHY THEY SPLIT

Jennifer Lawrence has parted ways with Chris Martin, but she's not letting it get her down. Celebrating her birthday at an Aug. 21 bash (she turned 25 on Aug. 15), the star "had the best time ever," says a source. Lawrence's pals know she's obsessed with reality TV and the Kardashians, so they surprised her with a visit from Kris Jenner. "She was laughing so hard and thought the entire night was hilarious," says a friend. For now Martin, 38, is out of the picture. "Chris is crazy about Jen but needs to be flexible so he can see his kids as much as possible with his own work schedule," says a source close to the Coldplay singer. Adds a Lawrence pal: "She was tired of him being so noncommittal." Don't rule out a reconciliation. Adds the Martin source: "They still care about each other." —MELODY CHIU with Linda Marx

"Thanks for making this night a night to remember," Jenner captioned a photo from the party on Instagram.

BEN AFFLECK & JENNIFER GARNER

STRUGGLING WITH WHAT'S NEXT

When Jennifer Garner and Ben Affleck announced their split on June 30, they knew this would be one of the hardest summers of their lives. Even as they put up a united front in public, spending time together with their kids, the strains have been mounting. "Jen was hoping for a peaceful summer in Atlanta," says a source close to the family. "Instead, it's been very stressful for her. She can't stand the situation that Ben put her and the kids in."

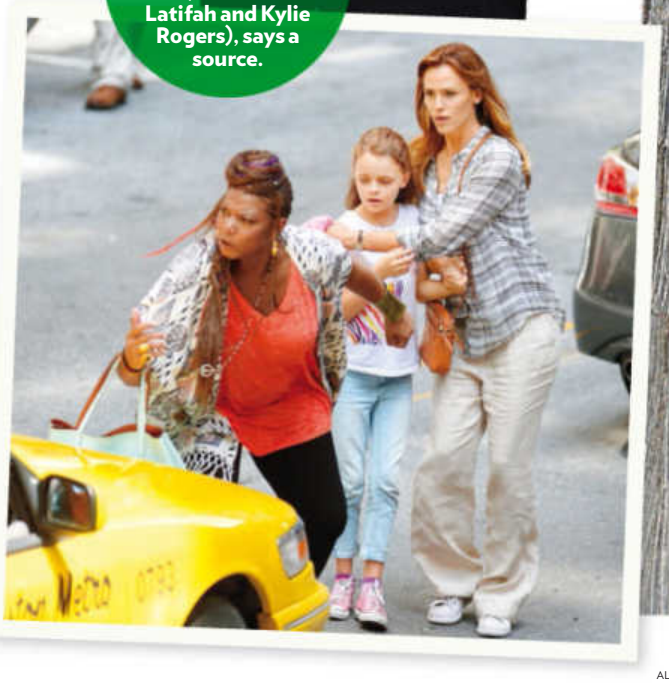

With the school year starting up soon, Affleck—who continues to deny an affair with ex-nanny Christine Ouzounian—returned to L.A. with Violet, 9, Seraphina, 6, and Samuel, 3, while Garner wraps filming Miracles from Heaven in Atlanta. Affleck is "happiest when he's with his family," says a close friend, and the pair are "making the best of a hard situation."

The exes originally intended to keep living on the same property in L.A. With their main home under renovation, though, "Jen will always make sure that Ben spends as much time with the kids as he wants, but she is rethinking their living situation," says the family source.

Affleck and Garner, both 43, also plan to work out the terms of their divorce with a private mediator. Meanwhile Garner is simply trying to take things day by day. "Her friends are urging her to take more time to herself," says the family source. "Jen deserves to be happy."

'HER FRIENDS WANT HER TO FIGURE OUT A NEW NORMAL THAT IS FOCUSED ON HER HAPPINESS AS WELL AS HER KIDS'
—A FAMILY SOURCE ON JENNIFER GARNER

Despite the drama, Garner has been "amazing and professional" on-set (with Queen Latifah and Kylie Rogers), says a source.

ED SKREIN

Filming the over-the-top action scenes for The Transporter Refueled (out Sept. 4) was a "completely crazy" experience for Londoner Ed Skrein, who stars as a dapper mercenary in the film. "I had to fight nine guys around a moving car and ride a Jet Ski in a Christian Dior suit," says Skrein, 32, who first caught attention as the Khaleesi's boy toy on Game of Thrones. "Whenever you read scripts, you think to yourself, 'How am I going to do that?' But it always ends up bloody fun. I always end up saying to the director, 'Don't have a stuntman do this; I want to do this!' " When he's not on-set, the former swim coach and rapper enjoys going to the playground with his young son Marley. "I live a very ordinary life when I'm not riding Jet Skis in suits!" —GABRIELLE OLYA

LADY GAGA
HER DARING NEW ROLE

MOTHER MONSTER'S LATEST CAREER MOVE is (bloody) brilliant. The singer, 29, stars as the Countess, a murderous hotelier, in this fall's American Horror Story: Hotel—a role co-creator Ryan Murphy wrote for her. "I always wanted to be an actress. . . . I was very awkward. I wasn't particularly pretty in high school. I was sort of blooming. Now I'm here," Gaga says in the new issue of Entertainment Weekly (on stands now). Murphy adds that the chart-topper, who's engaged to actor Taylor Kinney, jumped right in on-set: "She showed up and she was wearing diamond pasties, a Band-Aid on her hoo-ha, heels and a black veil. . . . Then the crew gasped in delight, and we were off!" As for the singer's performance? Costar Kathy Bates gives it high praise: "It just scared the s--- out of me." —JEFF NELSON

Gaga gets gruesome on EW's cover.

"This is going to be more terrifying than jumping on top of a crocodile," Irwin, 17, says of joining the ABC show (premiering Sept. 14).

CATCHING UP WITH . . .
BINDI IRWIN

Are you excited to compete on season 21 of Dancing with the Stars? I've watched the show since I was a little girl, so I'm absolutely thrilled. But also a little scared. I've never done anything like this before in my life.

Do you have a dance background? I've always admired ballroom dancing, but I've never really tried it. As a girl, I'd put my fairy costume on and go and dance around the zoo. Then I'd go pick up a snake or a lemur, and I'd come home and my fairy dress would be covered in mud.

So this will be a big change of pace for you. I'm used to jumping on top of crocodiles and holding them down to put trackers on them. Now I'm about to be on a dance floor in the middle of a concrete jungle. I just got back from my family's annual month-long trip to the Steve Irwin Wildlife Reserve. I took a shower last night, and the amount of dirt and mud that came off of me was phenomenal.

Do you plan on dedicating a dance to your father, the late Steve Irwin? My dad was probably not the best dancer on earth. He didn't have any extraordinary moves. But he will always be with me in spirit, and I really want to make him as proud as possible.

Consider TECFIDERA—a pill that has the strength to cut relapses in half.

TECFIDERA is a pill for relapsing multiple sclerosis (MS) that has been shown to cut relapses in half. During a 2-year study, TECFIDERA reduced risk of relapse by 49% compared with placebo. TECFIDERA is also proven to slow the development of brain lesions and delay the progression of physical disability. Over 135,000 people around the world have taken TECFIDERA.* Ask your doctor if you should too.

Tecfidera® (dimethyl fumarate) is a prescription medicine used to treat people with relapsing forms of multiple sclerosis.

Important Safety Information

Do not use TECFIDERA if you have had an allergic reaction (such as welts, hives, swelling of the face, lips, mouth or tongue, or difficulty breathing) to TECFIDERA or any of its ingredients.

Before taking and while you take TECFIDERA, tell your doctor about any low white blood cell counts or infections or any other medical conditions.

What are the possible side effects of TECFIDERA? TECFIDERA may cause serious side effects including allergic reactions, PML, which is a rare brain infection that usually leads to death or severe disability, and decreases in your white blood cell count. Your doctor may check your white blood cell count before you take TECFIDERA and from time to time during treatment.

The most common side effects of TECFIDERA include flushing and stomach problems. These can happen especially at the start of treatment and may decrease over time. Taking TECFIDERA with food may help reduce flushing. Call your doctor if these symptoms bother you or do not go away. Ask your doctor if taking aspirin before taking TECFIDERA may reduce flushing.

These are not all the possible side effects of TECFIDERA. Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088. For more information go to dailymed.nlm.nih.gov.

Tell your doctor if you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant, or breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if TECFIDERA will harm your unborn baby or if it passes into your breast milk. Also tell your doctor if you are taking prescription or over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, or herbal supplements.

For additional important safety information, please see Patient Information on the following page. This is not intended to replace discussions with your doctor.

GISELE & TOM

MARRIAGE UNDER FIRE

It's been a difficult few months for Tom Brady and supermodel wife Gisele Bündchen. As the New England Patriots quarterback, 38, challenges his four-game suspension in federal court for his role in the football-tampering scandal Deflategate, reports have been swirling of trouble on the home front. "There have been a lot of stresses in their marriage," says a source close to Brady, adding that he can be "nasty and cold" when focused on his own problems. "There have been arguments." The couple spent their birthdays apart this year, which is unusual, and Bündchen, 35, was absent from Brady's court hearing and the Patriots' Aug. 13 preseason game.

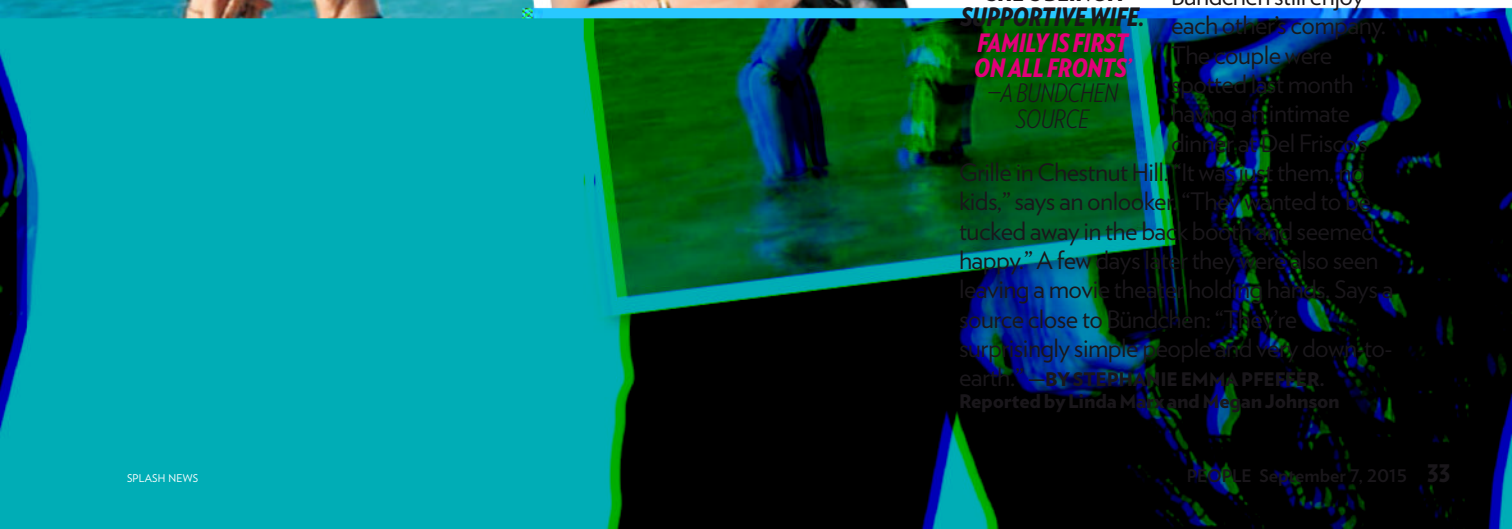

Eyebrows were also raised when Bündchen was allegedly spotted entering a high-end plastic surgery clinic in Paris wearing a burka in July. And a photo surfaced the next month showing Christine Ouzounian—Ben Affleck and Jennifer Garner's former nanny—posing with Brady's Super Bowl rings. (The shot was taken en route to a charity poker tournament.) But sources say none of this means trouble in paradise. "They're living their life, and they're doing great," a source close to Bündchen says of the couple and their kids Benjamin, 5, and Vivian, 2. (Brady also shares a son, John, 8, with ex-girlfriend Bridget Moynahan.) "They didn't spend his birthday together because he was in training camp." And the Super Bowl rings pic? "That was utterly random. It was just a weird place, weird time situation."

When they're both at home in Boston, though, Brady and Bündchen still enjoy each other's company. The couple were spotted last month having an intimate dinner at Del Frisco's Grille in Chestnut Hill. "It was just them and kids," says an onlooker. "They wanted to be tucked away in the back booth and seemed happy." A few days later they were also seen leaving a movie theater holding hands. Says a source close to Bündchen: "They're surprisingly simple people and very down-to-earth." —BY STEPHANIE EMMA PFEFFER. Reported by Linda Mak and Megan Johnson

"Happy birthday, my love! We're so blessed to have you in our lives," Bündchen captioned this Instagram shot on Brady's birthday Aug. 3 (with Vivian and Benjamin).

PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT GIVING BACK

Bates attends the LE&RN run/walk in Santa Monica.

Kathy Bates

The actress, 67, hopes to raise awareness and research funds for lymphedema

About three years ago I discovered I had breast cancer and underwent a double mastectomy. After the surgery I developed lymphedema [the buildup of fluid in soft body tissues]. I have a very mild case, but I have to wear compression garments from time to time, and it really does affect quality of life. My doctor helped me turn my anger about having this debilitating disease into something positive—she told me about the Lymphatic Education & Research Network [LE&RN], and I've become an ambassador. Now when I attend social events wearing my [compression] sleeves, I feel less self-conscious. I want people to ask me about it. Lymphedema affects up to 10 million Americans. Hopefully more people will come out of the shadows and talk about it. –REPORTED BY MICHELLE WARD TRAINOR

COMEDY CENTRAL

No. 1 Drunk History

Back for season 3, the oddball hit gives comedians a shot (or two) at reliving the past

TV COMEDY This former YouTube show, a gleeful trashing of American history that recently became a surprise Emmy nominee, could make Ken Burns cry sepia tears. Or just laugh uncontrollably. Comedians, including Jenny Slate and Community creator Dan Harmon, recount tales of real-life figures (in her case, the astronomers who confirmed the big bang theory)—but only after host and co-creator Derek Waters has let them imbibe. They quickly become unreliably wobbly narrators, interpolating non sequiturs, obscenities and inaccuracies into the story. It's a pathetic gag—why not make them wear lamp shades too?—but then Waters hires stars (Josh Hartnett, Chris Meloni and others) to dress up and act out the narration, often lip-synching it. Somehow these layers fuse into one funny entity. Here's to you, Mr. Waters. (Comedy Central, Sept. 1, 10:30 p.m.)

No. 2 Mad Max: Fury Road

DVD+STREAMING

ACTION Why wait until the next Super Bowl to upgrade your TV setup? Do it now, so you can enjoy every antic, gloriously violent moment in this reboot starring Charlize Theron and Tom Hardy. Plus, there are extras about the ingenious action sequences—you'll have answers when you shriek, "How'd they do that?!" (Sept. 1, R)

Nicholas Hoult, Courtney Eaton, Riley Keough and Theron bring the Fury.

On the trail of Escobar: Maurice Compte (left), Boyd Holbrook and Pedro Pascal.

No. 3 Narcos

An epic about a man of deadly power—and powder

NETFLIX DRAMA This tough, fascinating series charts the rise of the Colombian drug cartel—and the American pursuit of its leader, the notorious Pablo Escobar—in a methodical, near-documentary style somewhere between Steven Soderbergh's Traffic and Law & Order. As Escobar, Wagner Moura suggests Michael Shannon without the wild eyes. He owns the show, just as Escobar did Colombia. (Streaming, Aug. 28)

No. 4 Maddie & Tae, Start Here

The duo lose the sass and get sensitive

MUSIC COUNTRY Maddie Marlow and Tae Dye broke out last summer with "Girl in a Country Song," a clever send-up of "bro country" and its manly clichés (cutoffs, tailgates). Their debut album has more of a heart-on-your-sleeve twang (songs about young love and mean girls) and should fill the void created by Taylor Swift's move to pop.

Three is such a crowd: Pine, Ejiofor and Robbie.

No. 5 Jordin Sparks, Right Here Right Now

MUSIC

R&B Been waiting for the American Idol powerhouse to finally find her sound? Like the title says, it's right here. On her third album she swaps pop ballads for hip-hop-tinged R&B delivered with a healthy dose of lady swagger—think '90s Mariah Carey.

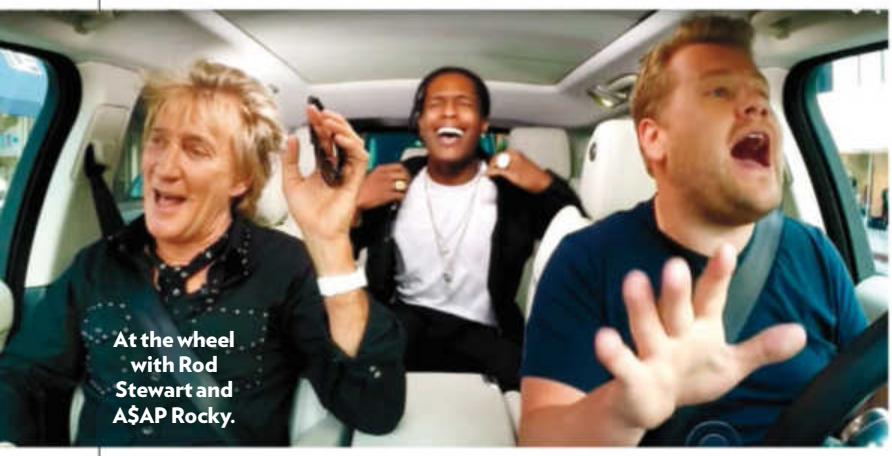

No. 6 Z for Zachariah

Margot Robbie makes the end of the world all better

MOVIE

THRILLER All's fair in love and Armageddon. Lord knows how her farm survived radiation that poisoned the rest of the country, but Ann Burden (Robbie) and her homestead are just what engineer John Loomis (Chiwetel Ejiofor) needs. They find each other and feelings stir, until Caleb (Chris Pine) arrives, upsetting every possible dynamic. Pine and Ejiofor are dandy rivals, but Robbie is the revelation with her range and subtlety. This cagey drama is a slow burn but worth your patience. (Aug. 28, PG-13)

At the wheel with Rod Stewart and A$AP Rocky.

No. 7 The Late Late Show with James Corden

YOUTUBE

COMEDY Corden, the sweetly amiable British star who took over from Craig Ferguson in March, has quickly learned the key principle that any conscientious modern talk host must follow: Go viral or go home. He's teamed up with Vine performers to study the art of the six-second video. Recently he even taped an episode at YouTube's L.A. facility with nothing but YouTube stars as guests. His site includes these lighthearted clips along with his popular stunt Carpool Karaoke, a mobile sing-along with everyone from Iggy Azalea to Justin Bieber. (youtube.com/user/thelatelateshow)

No. 8 MTV Video Music Awards

TV

When Miley Cyrus achieved a succès de scandale twerking on the 2013 show, she seemed to be trying too hard to kill off—annihilate—her old cute-teen image. But in 2015, with Miley set to host, we should give her credit: Outrageous Miley is now the accepted, recognizable Miley. She won. So bring on the shocks, Miley. We want them. (MTV, Aug. 30, 9 p.m.)

Kingsley and Clarkson take a special kind of road trip.

No. 9 Learning to Drive

MOVIE COMEDY/DRAMA Patricia Clarkson should work more, for our sake. She brings depth and light to Wendy, a book critic whose husband leaves, prompting her to take driving lessons as an escape. If Ben Kingsley is more boxed in playing her firm teacher Darwan, their tentative friendship feels earned and genuine. Drive never runs out of charm. (Now playing, R)

No. 10 Queen of Earth

MOVIE DRAMA In this mean little thriller, Elisabeth Moss is a fragile woman longing for rest in the country—well, think again. The actress holds back nothing: She spins out of control like salad greens piled on a flying Frisbee. (Aug. 26, unrated)

No. 11 The Weeknd, Beauty Behind the Madness

MUSIC R&B Like "Earned It," the Weeknd's Fifty Shades of Grey hit, his latest LP is dark, moody bedroom music—any libido will get a boost from it. He's best when channeling Thriller-era Michael Jackson on the funky, Max Martin-assisted "Can't Feel My Face" and "In the Night." They're instant classics.

No. 12 The Best New Books

Another dazzler from Jonathan Franzen, an Iranian family saga and a quietly affecting take on adult autism

EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

BOOK OF THE WEEK

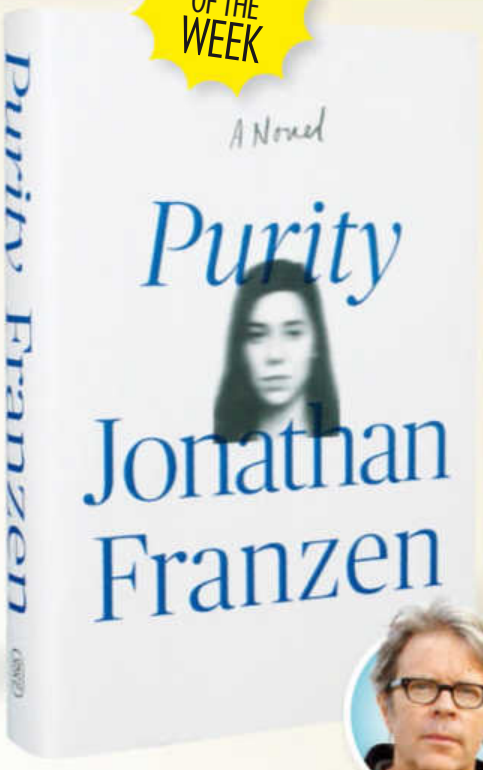

Eli Gottlieb
Best Boy

NOVEL Todd Aaron, the autistic 50-year-old who narrates this engrossing novel, has always done what's asked—until a young woman enters the living center he calls home and shows how rules can be broken. Taking us into Todd's consciousness, where emotions are visceral sensations, Gottlieb beautifully illuminates a little-understood world.

Parnaz Foroutan
The Girl from the Garden

NOVEL This elegant debut focuses on a family of wealthy Iranian Jews and the inheritance crisis that nearly tears them apart. Told from the viewpoint of the daughter, who's left her homeland to live in Los Angeles, it's a riveting portrait of family strife in a troubled land—and the fallout when a woman's fertility determines her worth.

Jonathan Franzen
Purity

NOVEL Franzen's baaack—with another seductive, topical read to get everyone talking (and arguing). The characters include a millennial on a quest to find her father's identity, a hero-worshipped German (very Julian Assange) who runs the secret-smashing Sunlight Project, a pair of old-school journalists and an infuriating, extreme feminist. Wickedly smart and funny about power and desire, sometimes flabby and contrived yet still irresistible: pure Franzen.

NEW IN NONFICTION

Elizabeth Meyer
Good Mourning
Not so much an entry-level job as an exit-level one, Meyer's post-college stint at a Manhattan funeral parlor yielded a memoir that's both funny and touching.

Cara Nicoletti
Voracious
Butcher, blogger and lit lover Nicoletti shares memories of her favorite books and the recipes they inspired. (Mrs. Dalloway's éclairs, anyone?) Delish.

Susan Casey
Voices in the Ocean
Part science, part memoir, part impassioned plea for change, Casey's look at the world of dolphins—and our mistreatment of them—fascinates.

THE OLDEST OF THE 19 KIDS CONFESSES TO KEEPING DARK SECRETS—FOR THE SECOND TIME IN 3 MONTHS. NOW THE DUGGAR FAMILY'S INSULAR WORLD IS UNDER MORE SCRUTINY THAN EVER

Josh Duggar's CHEATING SCANDAL

HIS SHOCKING DOUBLE LIFE

Anna Duggar is not angry. On Aug. 20 her husband, Josh, admitted that he had been "the biggest hypocrite ever." When he confessed to being unfaithful and to an addiction to pornography after he was exposed in the massive hack of cheating website Ashley Madison, Anna's response was in line with the way she has been taught all her life.

"She doesn't get mad," a Duggar family source tells People. "It is not godly for a woman to get mad. She is not allowed to." Like her mother-in-law, Michelle, "she is very quiet," says the source. "She even talks like her, really soft." Meanwhile, several of her siblings begged her to leave Josh, even offering to buy her and her four children a plane ticket, and her brother Daniel blasted the 27-year-old firstborn Duggar on Facebook, saying, "I won't stop trying to get that pig out of our family." Anna responded by largely cutting off communication with them. With no friends and almost zero contact with the larger world beyond Josh and his family, "her situation is unreal," says the source. "The scary thing is, I don't know who is talking to Anna, outside of the people in Duggarville."

'I don't think it's really hit Anna yet. I think she's still in shock'
—A DUGGAR FAMILY SOURCE

LOVE AND LIES
In 2012 Josh posed with his growing family, including wife Anna, daughter Mackynzie and son Michael. "I am so ashamed," he said after the cheating scandal came to light.

Now Duggarville itself is under siege. With two scandals in three months, the famous family's insular world—carefully constructed and zealously guarded by powerful patriarch Jim Bob—is being exposed for the first time by those on the inside. Josh's own admission of a sex-fueled "double life" in which he paid almost $1,000 to Ashley Madison, including a $249 fee for an "affair guarantee," has been the biggest blow yet to the family's image. Now, as hostilities mount between Anna's siblings and Josh's—Daniel's comments were made in response to a Facebook post by Josh's sister Jessa, in which she shared a Bible passage about being cleansed of sin—the brand of wholesome Christian values that helped make their TLC reality show 19 Kids and Counting a hit for 10 seasons is crumbling, even if the family's faith is not. "Their faith is in no way rocked by this," says a source with ties to the family. "If anything, they are feeling more devout than ever because they are turning 100 percent to God and prayer and their church community to help them get through this." (The Duggar family did not respond to requests for comment.)

The idea that Anna, 27, might leave her husband is unthinkable to her, say several people close to the situation. "She will be told the Cross forgives every sin and Satan is trying to attack her marriage," says the Duggar family source. Once an outgoing "bossy big sister," as a source close to Anna describes her, Anna was introduced to Josh after their like-minded parents arranged a "courtship." Although the 2006 police report that revealed Josh had molested five underage girls as a teen was not yet public, "we all knew that something had happened, but it definitely wasn't portrayed in its entirety," says the source close to Anna. "They kind of tried to hide it from everybody. Anna did know, but it was kind of something that was swept under the rug, and nobody made a big deal out of it." Even after Anna's parents learned the truth, "they still gave their blessing," adds the source, noting that growing up, Anna and her siblings were limited to one 15-minute session per week to share their feelings with their mom. "How she was brought up, if your parents gave their blessing, then you pretty much marry the guy, and that's what God's will is for you. That's what's best for your life, and that's it. It was just her looking to her parents and them being okay with it, and then she became okay with it."

Model big brother, faithful husband, family-values advocate: The pious facade Josh Duggar created for himself hid the deeply troubled man beneath

LEADER OF THE PACK
As Jim Bob and Michelle's oldest, Josh (at the piano in 2007) kept up appearances on 19 Kids and Counting as the admired firstborn. "If he hadn't gotten caught, would he have said anything? Probably not," says a Duggar family source.

MEETING HIS MATCH
Anna and Josh met at a Christian conference in 2006 and, after courting, wed in 2008. "They were full of love," says the Duggar family source.

BUILDING A BROOD
The young couple welcomed their first child, daughter Mackynzie, in 2009. "Anna started to act just like Michelle," the family insider says.

understand it. Like Josh and his brothers and sisters, Anna was raised within the rigid ideology of the conservative patriarchal movement, a catchall term that encompasses several fundamentalist Christian sects. Although the Duggars have carefully avoided publicly aligning themselves with that ideology or any other—including the controversial Quiverfull movement (see box)—their views on sexuality, sex, marriage and the role of women mirror those espoused by Bill Gothard, a disgraced leader in the movement. (In 2014 Gothard was placed on administrative leave from the Institute in Basic Life Principles, the ministry he founded, after female staffers accused him of sexual harassment. No charges were filed, but he subsequently resigned.) The Duggars have been a fixture at annual conventions in which Gothard's teachings are advanced, and the family source says the 80-year-old minister is a favored guest at the family's guarded compound in Tontitown, Ark. "Everyone who has spent any real amount of time with them has known forever that they are essentially devout Gothard followers," says the source with ties to the family, "and that there's not a whole lot different between what they're doing and a cult. And those same people have known for quite some time that Jim Bob calls all the shots. Always has and always will."

The Duggar family source, who has spent time with Jim Bob, 50, concurs. "Jim Bob's favorite word is no. He's like a dictator. He once saw a guy kissing a girl before marriage and confronted him about it. And the guy said, 'Jim Bob, show me that verse in the Bible that says we can't kiss. Get out your Bible.' And Jim Bob was like, 'Uhhhhhh . . . ' Because no one ever confronts Jim Bob. No one."

The father's role as the supreme head of the house is a cornerstone of the conservative patriarchal movement. When a wife submits to her husband, "she is told it is a way to open a channel for God to be able to work in his heart," says Vyckie Garrison, a former disciple of the Quiverfull movement who now speaks out against it on her blog No Longer Quivering. "That is why they put him as the leader of the home and make sure he makes all the decisions. The husbands are catered to like temper-tantrum-throwing 3-year-olds. The wives become total martyrs, and the husbands become complete narcissists. It is a really bad dynamic."

The source close to Anna, one of eight children, says her parents' views are "even a little more extreme" than the Duggars' in many ways. "A lot of things she was so sheltered about," says the source. "She was familiar with the words 'rape' or 'abuse,' but I don't think she really understood what that even meant, as far as molesting and

MAKINGS OF A POLITICIAN
Following in the footsteps of his father, Josh moved Anna and their kids to Washington, D.C., and often spoke at events like this anti-gay-marriage rally at the Arkansas State Capitol in 2014.

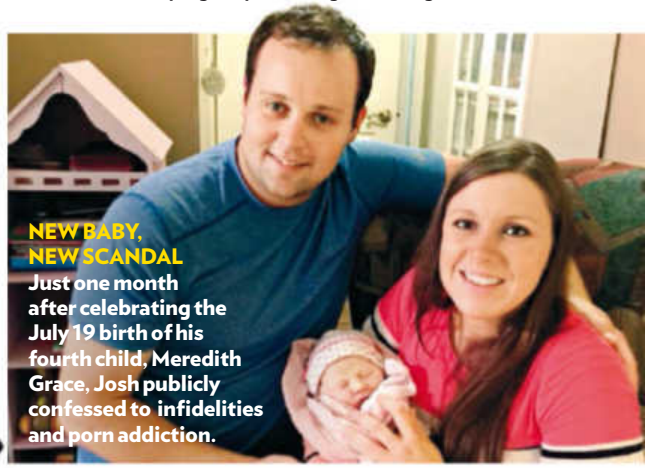

DARK PAST REVEALED
In June, Josh's sisters Jessa (left) and Jill went public with the sexual abuse they suffered from Josh when he was a teen, saying they had long since forgiven him.

SPREADING THE WORD
Before he resigned following his first scandal in May, Josh (in 2014) promoted a right-wing Christian agenda for the Family Research Council. "He sold it so well," says the Duggar family source.

NEW BABY, NEW SCANDAL
Just one month after celebrating the July 19 birth of his fourth child, Meredith Grace, Josh publicly confessed to infidelities and porn addiction.

things like that. She was very, very sheltered with anything to do with physical relations."

Growing up on the family's isolated compound, Josh would have had a similar experience. "They don't talk about sex. They don't talk about sexuality," says the Duggar family source. "It's covered up, and it's shameful." Physical contact before marriage is limited to chaste "side hugs," and self-expression is so forbidden that, the source says, Jim Bob combed through all his children's toys to remove the batteries of any that made music, "because he didn't want them to dance or move their bodies that way."

Before their 2008 wedding, Anna and Josh would never have kissed. Less than four months later she was pregnant with their first child. For many disciples of conservative patriarchy, "the wife is obligated to provide sex to her husband on demand," says Garrison. "Your body doesn't belong to you, and you are required to just submit to that." The source with ties to the Duggar family says Anna may try to "absorb some of the blame" for her husband's transgressions: "Maybe not publicly but privately there will be some suggestion of whether she should have been more aware of the pressures Josh was under and how she could have better counseled him."

'There was always something a bit odd about Josh' —A SOURCE CLOSE TO ANNA

In belief systems such as Quiverfull, "women are taught that their sexual purity is of paramount importance and that they're responsible for men's sexual reactions to them," says Kathryn Joyce, author of Quiverfull: Inside the Christian Patriarchy Movement. "It has been common not just in Quiverfull circles but also more broadly in some fundamentalist Christian communities to hold women responsible for men's sexuality and their choices, whether by accusing women of causing men 'to stumble' because of how they dress or accusing wives of causing their husbands' affairs because they didn't satisfy them." (Michelle herself spoke of once accidentally tempting men by mowing the lawn in her bikini: "I had no idea what I was doing to my neighbor's husband across the street. No wonder the woman hated our family.... I had no clue as far as the responsibility I had in that the way I dressed caused men to have struggles.")

In their own 2014 advice book Growing Up Duggar, four of the Duggar daughters—including Jill, 24, and Jessa, 22, both of whom stepped forward as two of Josh's molestation victims—shared that the family has a code word, "Nike," to help the men avoid lustful thoughts if an attractive woman crosses their path. "That's a signal to the boys, and even to Dad, that they should nonchalantly drop their eyes and look down at their shoes as we walk past her," they wrote. "It's meant to help keep the guys' eyes from seeing things they shouldn't be seeing. By using the single-word signal, the warning can be given quietly and discreetly." Adds the Duggar family source: "They say it, and all the boys look straight down to the floor every time. It's like an automatic military thing. Things like that blow my mind."

Josh's inner conflict was apparent even in his public apology, which was amended twice: first to remove the reference to allowing "Satan to build a fortress" in his heart "that no one knew about," and later to delete the mention of his "secret addiction" to pornography. Like his father, a former Arkansas state representative with powerful political connections, Josh hoped to have a career promoting the family's deeply conservative agenda. "An essential ideal in Quiverfull is to bolster the man's position within the government," says Garrison. "They are very much into establishing God's law as the law of the land. They want to make legislation based on the Bible."

CHRISTIAN VLOGGERS SAM & NIA
Popular Christian video bloggers Sam Rader and his wife, Nia, made headlines after posting a sweet video on Aug. 5 of him revealing to Nia that she was pregnant with their third child. Three days later they shared the news that Nia had miscarried. Now the pair have found themselves ensnared in the Ashley Madison scandal. "I did make the account. I made the account two years ago," Sam said with Nia by his side in a video posted Aug. 21 (pictured). "I've never had an affair with anybody, ever, while I've been married with Nia. The account was opened out of pure fleshly desires and out of simple curiosity." Nia said she had forgiven him: "This is in our past. . . . Our marriage is worth fighting for."

The Family Research Council, where Josh held a high-profile position, slammed him in the wake of the scandal, saying in a statement, "His deceitful behavior harms his family, his friends, his former coworkers and the cause he has publicly espoused." With his political aspirations now in tatters, Josh is hunkered down with Anna and their four children—the youngest of whom, Meredith Grace, was just 4 weeks old when the cheating scandal broke. "Anna and Josh are probably praying around the clock right now," says the source with ties to the family. "She is fully and permanently committed to her marriage and her children. And she'll have the support of Jim Bob and Michelle and everyone else in the family's circle in terms of staying with him and making it work. Divorce is not even something that will be discussed." After Josh confessed to having "re-broken" his family's trust and causing "hurt, pain and disgrace," his first cousin Amy Duggar visited the couple and prayed with them. "I gave Anna the biggest hug on the planet," she tells People. "I just wrapped my love around her."

What Is 'Quiverfull'?

The Duggars have said they are not part of the Quiverfull movement, but many of their views closely align with those of the group, which took off in the mid-'80s with the publication of Mary Pride's The Way Home: Beyond Feminism, Back to Reality, in which she argued for a Bible-based role for women. The movement takes its name from an Old Testament psalm that likens children to "arrows" and says, "Blessed is the man whose quiver is full of them." With no single leader or doctrine, "what Quiverfull looks like in practice varies widely from family to family," says author Kathryn Joyce.

MORE IN LOVE THAN EVER AFTER A HEARTBREAKING YEAR, TRACY MORGAN AND MEGAN WOLLOVER MARRY IN AN ELEGANT ESTATE WEDDING

—TRACY MORGAN

Even when they first met, Tracy Morgan and Megan Wollover had a connection. "The very first thing I said to her was, 'You are going to be my wife,'" says the comedian. On Aug. 23, four years after he proposed, the couple made it official, tying the knot in front of 150 of their closest family and friends at the Ashford Estate in Allentown, N.J., with their daughter Maven, 2, serving as flower girl. It was an especially poignant day for Wollover, 28, and Morgan, 46, who was involved in a horrific car crash 14 months ago that left him fighting for his life. "Megan was by my side throughout all of the hard times of this past year," says the actor, who spent five months in a wheelchair. "She is my rock, and I couldn't be happier to have her take my last name." Wearing a custom Ines Di Santo gown, Wollover exchanged traditional wedding vows with Morgan underneath a sparkling chandelier inside the property's rustic barn chapel. At the reception, guests feasted on Chilean sea bass and pork rib eye and danced to tunes by deejay Jay Dhabi (the groom's pick) before the couple cut into a 5-ft.-tall cake. "I'm so excited to see what our future holds," says Wollover. Adds her husband: "We are the Morgans!"

2. The wedding cake by Pink Cake Box featured layers of vanilla and marble with multiple fillings.

3. The couple's daughter (and flower girl) Maven also wore a dress designed by Ines Di Santo.

4. "Tracy's so in love," says wedding planner Jenny Orsini, who began working with the couple in April.

As rowdy 7-year-olds, Spencer Stone and Alek Skarlatos chased in and out of each other's neighboring houses in Carmichael, Calif., with toy guns. By middle school Anthony Sadler made it a carefree trio and playing pretend war gave way to playing football. Typical boys, "they wanted to be policemen, firemen," Skarlatos's mom, Heidi Hansen, tells People. Stone bagged groceries in high school then joined the Air Force. Skarlatos and Sadler each worked at Costco—Skarlatos before deploying with his Army National Guard unit to Afghanistan; Sadler to help pay for classes at Cal State Sacramento. Says his dad, Anthony Sadler Sr.: "They're good boys. They could get into their share of mischief but nothing too dramatic."

heavily armed man aboard a Paris-bound Thalys train packed with 554 people. President Obama telephoned to say he was impressed by their bravery. French President François Hollande welcomed the threesome into the Élysée Palace to present each with the red-ribboned medal of France's highest award, the Legion d'honneur. "You averted what could have been a true carnage," Hollande said. Fellow passenger Jean-Hugues Anglade, a French actor, put it this way: "We were in the wrong place but with the right people."

"Our parents like to say that whenever we get together, there's always something that happens," Sadler, 23, says as the trio, upstairs in the U.S. Ambassador's residence in Paris for their first joint photo shoot Aug. 23, clowned for People's camera. But that something, this time, was supposed to be simple: three buddies ambling across Europe to celebrate Skarlatos's safe return this summer from Afghanistan and to take advantage of both Sadler's summer break from school and Stone's leave from Lajes Field air base in Azores, Portugal, where he serves as an emergency medical technician.

Instead it was just three days into their adventure when they scrapped thoughts of an extra night in Amsterdam ("They were having so much fun there, they almost canceled their trip to France," Skarlatos's father, Emmanuel, says) and boarded the Friday afternoon train to Paris. Unable to find the First-Class carriage they paid for, they settled into seats where they could. But the Wi-Fi was slow. As Sadler recalls, a half-hour down the tracks, "we were like, 'We have First Class, so we might as well go sit in First Class!'" It was a fateful move. The narrative of what happened next is drawn from accounts by the three men and other witnesses.

As Stone was "in a deep sleep" in his assigned First-Class seat, a passenger in the next car, 51-year-old American professor Mark Moogalian was telling his wife, Isabelle, there was "something strange" about the man—later identified by French authorities as Ayoub El-Khazzani, 26, of Moroccan origin—who took his bag into the bathroom. When the man emerged, he was shirtless and brandishing an AK-47. A Frenchman who wishes to be identified only as Damien A. tried to hold El-Khazzani back from behind, Isabelle told EUROPE 1 Radio. Moogalian told her to get down, she said, then "threw himself" at the gunman, who fired.

'The kids all grew up together. This is a life-changing event for them'
—STONE'S FATHER, BRIAN

"The gunshot was the first noise I heard," says Skarlatos. He hit Stone on the shoulder and said, "Dude. Let's go!" Stone charged at El-Khazzani, followed by Skarlatos and Sadler. "We saw him cocking the AK-47. So it was either do something or die," says Sadler. The gunman put up a fight. "Tackled him. We hit the ground," Stone explains. "Alek came up and grabbed the gun while I put the guy in a choke hold. It seemed like he just kept pulling out more weapons, left and right." El-Khazzani, who also carried a handgun and a box cutter, slashed at Stone, nearly severing his thumb before the bulky airman "choked him unconscious" at the same time Skarlatos beat El-Khazzani in the head with the muzzle of one gun and Sadler secured the other gun. By then, Chris Norman, 61, a British finance consultant and grandfather of three, had joined the three Americans, locking El-Khazzani's right arm behind his back. "Everybody else was cowering," Norman tells People. "And I thought, 'Now's the time to resist. We stand a better chance if we work as a team.'" While Skarlatos and Norman hog-tied El-Khazzani with passengers' neckties and scarves, Sadler searched for a first-aid kit, and Stone, though badly injured, aided Moogalian. Stone says he put two fingers into the gunshot wound in the professor's neck, "found what I thought to be the artery, pushed down and the bleeding stopped." Stone held that artery closed for 15 minutes until the train reached help at the station in Arras in northern France. "We just kind of acted," Skarlatos says. "There wasn't much thinking going on."

The three friends shudder now to think of the "what ifs." El-Khazzani, whom Hollande called "a terrorist" and who was, an American counterterror official tells People, a well-enough-known radical "that he would not be allowed into the United States," had a stash of ammunition that could kill hundreds—if only he knew what he was doing. Stone and Skarlatos, both trained weapons handlers, say El-Khazzani evidently could not fix his AK-47 after it jammed, and he hadn't properly loaded his handgun so the magazine fell out.

While those who know Stone, Skarlatos and Sadler best await their homecoming (at press time Stone was still being treated at Landstuhl Medical Center in Germany), none of them seem surprised by the trio's heroics—or that they were in it together. Sadler's father says he made the men promise before their trip "that they wouldn't go anywhere by themselves and that they would have each other's backs." As Skarlatos later joked of their togetherness, "We're probably going to be buried in the same casket!" Fortunately, just no time soon.

THE SINGER REVEALS HIS MUSICAL MILESTONES—AND THE SONGS THAT MAKE HIM MOVE!

By EILEEN FINAN

Eldredge's second album, Illinois, is out Sept. 11.

First concert Nelly. He was the man when I was in high school. Everybody listened to him at football practice and after school. At the show, I also remember smelling something skunky in the air that I never smelled before! Somebody had to explain what it was.

Favorite sing-along John Denver's "Take Me Home, Country Roads." It's so simple but says so much. Last Thanksgiving my family had a big party, and I was sitting at the bar playing that with the whole family gathered round. It's hard not to smile when you hear a song like that.

Guilty pleasure song The Jurassic Park theme song by John Williams. I listen to it all the time before I go to sleep. I have for years! It takes you to a magical musical place. It moves me in a crazy way. I love orchestra music—it's full of emotions, just through the sound of instruments.

Last album bought Compton by Dr. Dre. I love hearing somebody at their best in whatever genre they are. Dr. Dre is obviously a legend, and they've been talking about this album for so long, so I wanted to hear what one of the best in hip-hop does after being gone for 20 years. I dig it! He's still got it.

Musical group you wish you were in

The Rat Pack. Dean Martin, Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr. and Brett Eldredge! I'd definitely want to run with those guys, just for one night in Vegas. Being able to wear those suits and go up onstage with that group and sing that groovy music with a whiskey on the rocks would be so awesome!

Favorite breakup song

"Slow Dancing in a Burning Room" by John Mayer off Continuum. There's so much tension, and you feel it in the song. You feel like you're going down. It's always good to know there's someone else who's gone through that.

Best song for a workout

I'm really liking Major Lazer's "Lean On." It's got a really good beat, and it's got some wacky sounds in it. I like my music really loud, and I need a groove that keeps me moving when I'm working out.

Song that makes you dance

"Dancing with Myself" by Billy Idol. It's an amazing concept for a song—you don't have to dance with anyone! If I'm sitting in the living room when I hear that song, I'll pop up and dance to it myself. I don't care!

Best song to serenade a girl

John Mayer's "Your Body Is a Wonderland." It's intimate and descriptive and very sexy. I remember singing that in college at parties, and you'd have all the girls gathering around, and I remember thinking, "This song has something special to it!" So I still sing that in shows sometimes.

MIRANDA LAMBERT DREAMED IT; WE HAD IT ANALYZED!

Lambert's golden retriever Waylon.

THE DREAM

"I dreamed that my dog could fly, and I was riding him! I have no idea what that means. I do love unicorns, so maybe it's one of those things. It was my big dog Waylon; he's a golden retriever. He was found on the side of the road."

THE ANALYSIS

"Even though it seems like such a short, simple dream, there is so much significance here," says dream coach Paula Scardamalia of diviningthemuse.com. "Dogs symbolize faithfulness, protection and companionship. In addition, the dog is a 'rescue' dog and a golden retriever. Dreams often speak to us in pun, so I'd wonder what good, loyal companion in the industry is ready to take me flying high toward success—the 'golden'—and help me to 'rescue' and 'retrieve' my career dreams."

Zac Brown, the Jeweler

THE COUNTRY BAND FRONTMAN HAS DESIGNED A LINE OF PENDANTS FOR A GREAT CAUSE

The JEKYLL + HYDE collection ranges from $199 to $1,499

Zac Brown knows how to craft a great song, but he also has some skill when it comes to jewelry. "I wanted to help create something supermasculine and cool," Brown, 37, says of his newest venture, a chain and pendant line with William Henry founder and chief designer Matt Conable. When designing the JEKYLL + HYDE line, Brown didn't have to look far for inspiration. "I'm always losing my [guitar] picks, so now I'll always have a few spares around my neck," says the singer of the collection. Twenty percent of all sales of the pendants will go to support Camp Southern Ground, a charity created by Brown to serve children from a variety of backgrounds. "Camp was amazing for me and helped shape my life," he says. "I want to help teach kids things that they will carry with them for the rest of their lives."

ALL ABOUT

BALANCING A SUPERSTAR CAREER AND AN EXPANDED FAMILY, THE SINGER GETS REAL ABOUT HIS AMAZING JOURNEY—AND WHAT IT'S LIKE TO BE ON TOP OF THE COUNTRY WORLD

BY DANIELLE ANDERSON

It's been a long time since Luke Bryan could slip into a bar in his native Georgia and have a beer unnoticed. Hitting up a Nashville restaurant or mall without having to stop for selfies with fans is also a thing of the past. But after recently notching his 13th No. 1 hit, packing arenas and stadiums across the country on his sold-out Kick the Dust Up tour this summer and watching his fifth studio album, Kill the Lights, debut at the top of the country and pop charts last month, Bryan is finding his fame kicked up to a whole new level. On a recent shopping trip in New York City, the singer recalls, "I walked into some high-end retail store, and the sales guy is like, 'How are you, Mr. Bryan? We love your music!' "

It's a moment not lost on the reigning CMA and ACM Entertainer of the Year. "I relish that stuff!" says Bryan, 39. "The fact that I can come into town being a boy from south Georgia and have a legitimate place in a big city like Chicago, Boston, L.A. and certainly New York City…it's very flattering."

Becoming a bona fide household name isn't the only big change going on in Bryan's life. After the sudden death of his brother-in-law last year—leaving his late sister's three children without parents—the singer and his wife, Caroline, stepped in to help raise nephew Til and nieces Kris and Jordan alongside their own two boys, Bo, 7, and Tate, 5. Now juggling his roles as country superstar, husband, dad and uncle, Bryan sat down with People Country to chat about everything going on in his "crazy, blessed" world:

Party songs have come under criticism lately, but you've stuck with what your fans love despite that. Does it feel good to let the critics know you don't care what they say?

"I'm never going to not put albums out that people can have fun with. My only true barometer of how I'm doing in this business is, 'Are people laying their hard-earned money down to buy albums and come to shows?'"

The answer would seem to be yes: Last year your tour grossed more than $60 million. Has that even soaked in for you?

"This year I feel like it has soaked in more than ever. I've never been happier doing my job—I'm truly having a blast. I feel like with each year, another little bit of pressure is off to prove yourself on a daily basis. It's pretty crazy stuff to get to do what I do, and I try not to take a second for granted."

> "I'M ABOUT FIVE YEARS PAST LETTING CRITICS BOTHER ME"

Have Caroline and the kids been out on the road with you this summer?

"Not as much this summer because as the boys get older, they have more activities. Til came out for a week. Bo and Tate came out, Caroline flies in. We manage and juggle it the best we can. If I could have Caroline and the boys at every show, I'd tour 365 days a year. I love the road, but that's the only negative—sacrificing being away from your family."

You've had an incredibly emotional year—career highs paired with more personal loss. How do you keep so positive?

"I think with everything that's happened in my family, I just have to lean on my faith and the understanding that God has a plan for all of us. We just wake up every day and do our best. I'll get down in the dumps, and then I'll meet a Make-a-Wish kid, and I'll ask myself, 'What are you complaining about?' You just have to keep your faith strong and rock on."

You're working really hard to give an incredibly sad situation—having your nephew and nieces lose both their parents—a happy outcome. Does that feel like a much more important accomplishment than anything you could do in music?

"Oh yeah. Obviously my nieces and nephew, they didn't ask for this. Their life was amazing before Caroline and I took a more prominent role, even after losing their mother. Now my focus is trying to do what we can to help them."

Has there been a learning curve?

"I've had to learn a whole lot more about teenage girls than I ever imagined! I've always had boys, so I don't know anything about girls or how they handle things. It's been fun—and challenging."

What's the greatest lesson you've learned so far?

"I know you have to limit their data plan, 'cause Jesus, they'll run a phone bill up to $2,000!"

How have Bo and Tate adapted to having Til around?

"They love it. They're becoming better athletes cause Til gets to play with them. When I come home, they're throwing the baseball a little farther and hitting the ball a little harder. I know that's 'cause Til's been out in the yard with them."

Bo is no longer the big brother in the house. What's that been like?

"Bo went from being kind of the alpha male to being the middle child, but he takes it in stride. It's been amazing watching them do so well with it. They treat Til like their brother, and Til does the same."

You're also in the process of building your dream house on a 169-acre farm outside Nashville. How's that going?

"It's coming together every day, and we should be living in it by December. Caroline and I had all these ideas in our heads, and now we're able to build what we've always dreamed of. We've been living in a little guest house on the property, so we're just ready to get in it."

With more success comes more demands on your time. Do you feel like you're able to keep a good balance?

"You never perfect it. I'd been away from the boys for about 12 days, so last week we rented a plane to fly them up, and they spent two days out with me on the road. That's the amazing part of where I'm at now. If I want to make something like that happen, I can."

What would you say has been your biggest blessing?

"Everything I dreamed of, from being a husband, a dad, the boys… I always wanted boys. I always wanted to marry Caroline. I always wanted to be a country music singer. It's almost scary when you wake up and everything you dreamed of has happened. My biggest blessing is the relationships I have with everybody in my life—my wife, my family, my fans and my friends." ●

Tyler Hubbard & Hayley Stommel

An Affair to Remember

THE FLORIDA GEORGIA LINE SINGER WEDS HIS GIRLFRIEND OF TWO YEARS IN AN OH-SO-ROMANTIC CEREMONY IN IDAHO'S LUSH SUN VALLEY By DANIELLE ANDERSON

In the days leading up to Tyler Hubbard's July 1 wedding to Hayley Stommel, the couple had been busy practicing their first dance. Their chosen song? Keith Urban's romantic ballad "Making Memories of Us." "We had some cool dance moves worked out," says Hubbard. But the groom also had a little surprise up his sleeve. Right before the first dance, "Tyler took the microphone and said he had different

IT'S ALL IN THE DETAILS

1. FGL's Brian Kelley served as best man. "BK's speech was from the heart—and he kept it clean!" says Hubbard.
2. Hubbard's sterling silver and black diamond David Yurman ring "is very rock and roll and not your traditional wedding band," says Keegan. Stommel's 3-carat engagement ring is bookended with two custom pavé bands.

plans," recalls Stommel. Hubbard had secretly recorded a song written by his buddy, singer Canaan Smith. "It's called 'Grow Old with Me,' and it's actually a song I fell in love with about seven years ago and always remembered," explains Hubbard. "I asked him to dig it up out of the archives because I think it's the most beautiful thing about marriage—the fact that you're going to grow old together." To make it more personal for his bride, Hubbard put his own spin on the song and recorded it with just a guitar and his vocal. When he asked his bride to join him on the dance floor, "he had me crying; he had everyone crying!" says Stommel. "Happy tears! It was just the happiest moment."

The ceremony, in a flower-draped meadow in Idaho's idyllic Sun Valley, evoked plenty of joyful tears for Hubbard as well. "I was a basket case, to be honest," says Hubbard. "Seeing Hayley brought on an overwhelming flood of emotions. It was nothing I've really ever felt before. It was a very spiritual, amazing moment when we were joined. It was beautiful."

The bride, an Idaho native who'd grown up skiing in the area, planned the day with the help of wedding coordinator Brooke Keegan of Newport Beach, Calif. "They wanted an elegant, classic outdoor wedding that wasn't very rustic," says Keegan. "Everything had to be lush and romantic. I told the florist, 'When you think that's enough flowers, double it.' "

The result didn't disappoint. "It was truly magical," says Stommel, 28, who wore a lace Monique Lhuillier gown for the ceremony and then changed into an Olvi's dress for the party. "It was everything we hoped for and more." "Heaven on earth," adds Hubbard, also 28. "Mountains in the background, a little river and a bunch of really awesome people."

To complement the beauty of the natural setting, the couple asked their 150 guests to dress in neutral colors. But there was nothing subdued about the celebration. "It was a big ol' party," says Hubbard. "Everyone was just out there letting loose and celebrating life and love." And fellow country star Thomas Rhett made sure everyone got their turn on the dance floor. "He was going around to all of our grandmothers and mothers and bringing them into this big circle dance-off," says Stommel. "We were all laughing and cheering them on." But no one had more fun than the happy couple themselves. "The best part is being able to call Hayley my wife and say that it's official!" says Hubbard. "We're so excited to start this next chapter." ●

Brandi Carlile

The song title refers to a metaphorical hurricane—and the thin line between order and disaster. "It's a bit of a warning," says Carlile, who shares vocals with bandmates Phil and Tim Hanseroth, "that if you are going to dance on the edge of a razor, you better have good balance."

Alabama

DOWNLOAD: "Wasn't Through Lovin' You Yet"

Randy Owen calls the lead single off Southern Drawl—the iconic band's first album of new music in 14 years—"an Everyman's song." "At some point in a relationship you are going to screw up, and then try and do everything to get it working again," he says. Owen, likewise, didn't hold back in the recording studio. "I spilled my guts and my heart as if I was the guy wanting it all back," he recalls.

Jana Kramer

This tune—off Kramer's forthcoming album—"sounds kinda eerie—and supersexy," says the singer and One Tree Hill alum. "It describes what happens after you piece together a broken heart. It's also about a wedding ring, which is so much more than just a wedding band. It's six feet down and forever. It's you and me until the end." The song also seems perfectly timed for Kramer, who married former NFL tight end Mike Caussin in May and recently announced that they are expecting their first child in early 2016. "Each time I sing this, I think of my husband, which is really cool," she says.

Green's emotional single spotlights the sacrifices made by parents whose jobs take them far from their families. "I hate leaving the house, but it is hard to put 10,000 people in my backyard," says Green, a father of two who spends about 120 days a year on the road. "Any parent can relate."

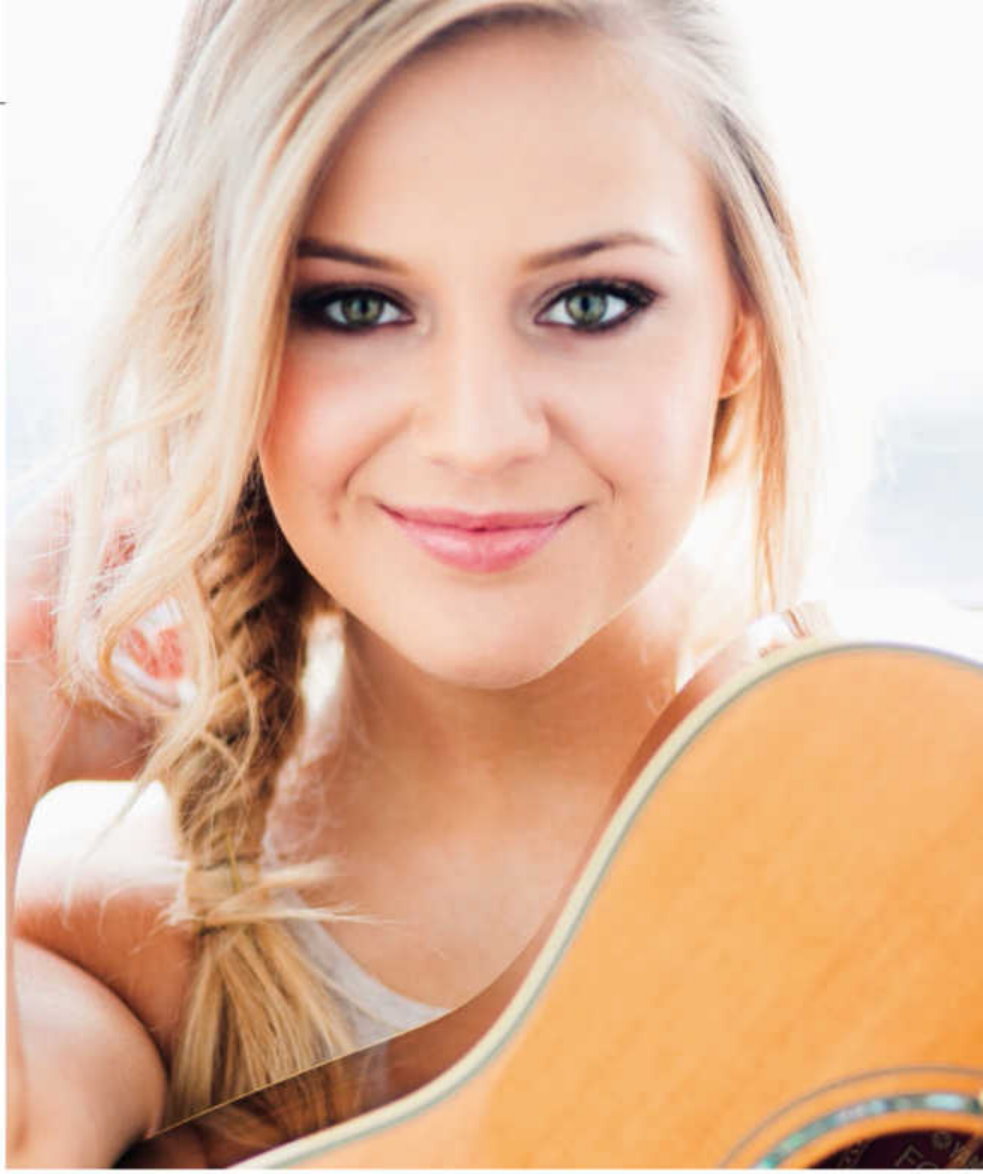

Michael Ray

DOWNLOAD: "Run Away with You"

Ray's modern-day love song offers up an old-school lesson. "It tells the story of this couple, and the world gets in the way of their relationship," says the "Kiss You in the Morning" singer. "Sometimes you need to turn the cellphones off and get back to what really matters, which is the two of you."

Kelsea Ballerini

DOWNLOAD: "The First Time"

Newcomer Ballerini just scored her first No. 1 hit with her debut single, "Love Me Like You Mean It." But she didn't just write this song, she lived it. "I was sitting on the porch waiting for this guy to show up. And I'm there thinking: 'I should know better. Why am I crying? I bet he is out drinking with another blonde.'" The stood-up singer turned her heartache into a tune "about a relationship where you are comfortable with it being uncomfortable." And the guy? "He knows the song is about him, and instead of being sorry, he's like, 'I was the inspiration for this!'" she recalls.

Rissi Palmer

DOWNLOAD: "Sweet Sweet Lovin'"

Eight years after her debut single, "Country Girl," hit the country charts, Palmer returns with "a fun love song about how a person makes you feel," says the singer, who calls it "a mixture of country, R&B and some gospel and pop." Then 3-year-old daughter Grace opens the track. "We took two minutes to teach her the part. Then she did it in one take and didn't want to stop."

DOLLY PARTON I'M THANKFUL FOR...

"Everyone has magic in their life," says Parton. "They just have to look inside themselves to find it."

AMERICA

I thank God that I live in a country where you can come from nothing and become something. You can really start low and scratch your way to the top in this country, if you're willing to pay the price.

MY DRIVE

I'm like a horse with blinders. If I've got a dream, I'm going to follow it and find all the ways to make it happen. You gotta put legs, arms and wings on your dreams. You can't just hope it and think it's gonna happen. You gotta work it.

MY FAMILY

I got the music from my mama's people. They were dreamers and creative people. From my dad, I got my willingness to work hard. My uncle Bill Owens saw my desire and my talent; he used to take me around because I had a guitar, but he had the car!

MY HUSBAND

Not everyone is lucky enough to be with someone for 50 years, but I have been. He has been the love of my life and the life of my love! We are completely opposite. But that makes it fun.

MAKEUP

I always put on a little makeup. I never know who's gonna come to my door. And if I'm in L.A., I put on full makeup in case an earthquake comes and I have to run out into the streets. I want to be able to say, "Yeah, my house fell down, but don't I look good?"

"They have a wonderful life together," a family friend says of the couple (in Venice).

George & Amal ONE MAGICAL YEAR!

From Lake Como to Ibiza, the Clooneys settle into their life of jet-setting wedded bliss

With glasses clinking and tequila flowing, George Clooney and his wife, Amal, watched the sun set behind the mountains of Ibiza, Spain, on Aug. 23. At the Spanish launch of the actor's tequila brand Casamigos on the rooftop terrace of the Ushuaïa Ibiza Beach Hotel, the couple were once again surrounded by friends, including George's business partner Rande Gerber and his wife, Cindy Crawford, and celebrating much as they did almost a year ago at their four-day wedding extravaganza in Venice. "They were very into each other. George always had his hand in hers, and Amal had her arm around him," says a source. "He always referred to her as 'My Love.'"

Ah, amore. As their one-year wedding anniversary nears on Sept. 27, George, 54, and human-rights attorney Amal, 37, are now enjoying a life together that is "definitely quieter, more family-oriented" than George's single days, says an insider. While last summer was hectic with wedding preparations, this year the two were able to relax at their Lake Como villa in Italy, where they hosted mostly family members and married friends with kids, including Julia Roberts and Edward Norton. Amal's father, Ramzi, "loves George," says a family friend. On date nights, "they have small romantic gestures for each other," says Paolo Quarantotto, who owns Il Gatto Nero restaurant in Cernobbio, where the two often dine. "Amal will reach out often to caress his face, and he never forgets to offer a forkful of whatever he has ordered for her to taste." According to a waiter at another local bar the two frequent, Clooney shares his wife's love for pasta: Pointing to Amal one night, he teased, "She eats, and I put it on."

Now, as the two put finishing touches on the $12 million historic estate they're renovating near London, pals have no doubt they will continue to be "a normal and very discreet couple, trying to live a very normal life together, given the circumstances," says a family friend. Whether or not they add to their twosome (besides their cocker spaniels, Einstein and Louie) remains to be seen. "Maybe they'll want to have a baby in the next year, but they are very happy," adds the insider. For Clooney their marriage is already perfection. "All I know is that it sort of changed everything in terms of what I thought my future—my personal future—was going to be," he told People in May. As their friend author Kathy Lette puts it, "They are mad about each other, they really are."

YOUTUBE STAR ZOELLA

From Scared to Star

THE BEAUTY AND FASHION BLOGGER OVERCOMES A DEBILITATING DISORDER —AND FINDS GLOBAL SUCCESS ONLINE

Zoe Sugg's heart would not stop racing. Her breathing became short and quick. She shivered uncontrollably even as her body heated up from within. "I didn't understand what was going on," the YouTube star known as Zoella says of feeling as though the room was closing in on her. She was suffering her first anxiety attack. She was just 14.

As a teen growing up in the English countryside, Sugg would spend particularly bad days confined to her bed and felt she was battling her anxiety alone. "When I first started [having attacks], there wasn't a lot of information out there, which was scary and stressful in itself," says Sugg, now 25. But after finding the right doctor to help her cope with her attacks, she started embracing the power of "yes"—a word she began to say (and hear) more often. In 2009 she started a fashion, beauty and lifestyle blog, which led to a YouTube channel with almost 9 million subscribers, which led to a best-selling book and an upcoming sequel. Some days the attacks still leave her incapacitated, "but I've had so many incredible opportunities and experiences by saying yes, even when I've been nervous about something," says Sugg, who also has a line of beauty products. "And in doing them, [I] have learned that I might be a bit braver than I thought." —PATRICK GOMEZ

My Life Now

Ashley Smith

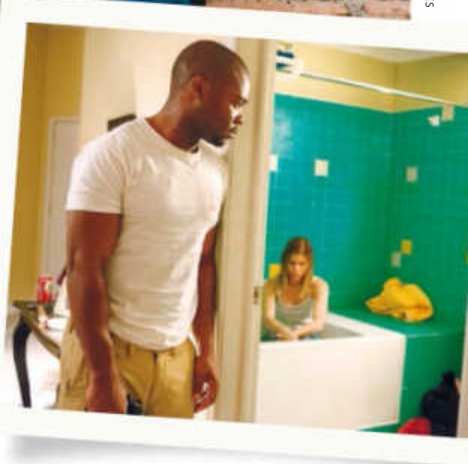

10 YEARS AFTER BEING HELD HOSTAGE IN HER HOME, THE MOM OF 3 OPENS UP ABOUT HER JOURNEY TO HAPPINESS

HAIR: SAJ MACKZENOBIA; MAKEUP: KIMBERLY R. KELLY; (INSET) PARAMOUNT PICTURES

THE NIGHT THAT ASHLEY SMITH WAS HELD HOSTAGE INSIDE HER APARTMENT was also the night that saved her life. "I remember staring into the barrel of a gun and thinking, 'I guess I'm never going to change,' " the 37-year-old radiology technician and motivational speaker tells People of her experience on March 12, 2005. "I was this lonely, widowed, drug-addicted mom, but as the night went on, I knew I was a changed woman. This was a wake-up call." After going out to buy cigarettes, Smith was accosted by Brian Nichols—an accused rapist who'd killed four people during his escape from an Atlanta courthouse. Nichols forced Smith back inside her Duluth, Ga., home and held her at gunpoint. Miraculously she earned his trust, drawing inspiration from the self-help book The Purpose Driven Life, and he let her go unharmed before turning himself in. Today Nichols is serving life in prison without the chance of parole, and their story has been turned into a movie, Captive, starring Kate Mara and David Oyelowo. Smith lives in North Augusta, S.C., with her husband of eight years, Daniel Robinson, her daughter Paige, 16, her stepdaughter Riley, 14, and their son Cole, 4. "I'm living the life I always wanted," she says. "It's never too late to turn your life around." —BY CAITLIN KEATING

THE MOVIE "The film is so real that I was basically yelling for tissues by the very first scene," Smith says of Captive, which will be released Sept. 18.

Power Plant Employees and Contractors

If you or a family member ever worked at a power plant, you could have been exposed to asbestos.

To keep your right to compensation if you become ill in the future (or have asbestos-related illness today), you must submit a claim by December 14, 2015, at 5:00 p.m., prevailing Eastern Time.

Energy Future Holdings Corp., Ebasco Services, Inc., EECI, Inc. and certain subsidiaries ("EFH") owned, operated, maintained, or built certain power plants across the United States and in other countries where asbestos was present. Workers at these power plants (and family members and others who came into contact with these workers) may have been exposed to asbestos.

Anyone who has a claim today against EFH for asbestos-related illness or who may develop an asbestos-related illness in the future, must submit a claim by December 14, 2015, at 5:00 p.m., prevailing Eastern Time to be eligible for compensation now or in the future.

What is asbestos?

Asbestos is a fiber which was used as insulation in walls, wires, pipes, boilers, generators, steam traps, pumps, valves, electrical boards, gaskets, packing material, turbines, compressors, cement and cement pipes. Workers responsible for building and maintaining power plants and equipment also wore insulated clothing or gear that may have contained asbestos. Virtually all power plants built before 1980 used or contained asbestos-containing products.

Asbestos-related illnesses can be very serious or fatal and include diseases such as mesothelioma, lung cancer, laryngeal cancer, esophageal cancer, pharyngeal cancer, stomach cancer and asbestosis. Even if your exposure to asbestos was many years ago and you are not sick today, this notice could affect you. Asbestos-related illness can occur decades and even 50 years after the exposure to asbestos that caused the illness.

Which power plants are included?

You or a family member could have been exposed at any of the power plants related to EFH. These power plants were located across the United States and some in foreign countries. For a list of the included power plants, visit the website below or call 1-877-276-7311.

How could this affect me?

You could have been exposed to asbestos if you or a family member worked at any of the included power plants as an employee, a contractor, or in any other role. You also could have been exposed by coming in contact with another person who worked at a power plant (for example, if asbestos was brought home on your spouse or parent's clothing). You may also file a claim on behalf of a deceased family member.

What do I do now?

If you believe that you or a family member may have been exposed to asbestos at an included plant, submit a claim by December 14, 2015, at 5:00 p.m., prevailing Eastern Time. Go to www.EFHAsbestosClaims.com to submit your claim online. To get a paper claim form, visit the website or call 1-877-276-7311. Submitting a claim preserves your right to ask for money if you develop asbestos-related illness in the future.

You can submit a claim yourself or you can ask a lawyer to help you. If you are not ill today, completing a claim takes about five minutes.

What if I do nothing?

If you do not submit a claim and later develop asbestos-related disease, you will not be eligible for compensation from EFH. Even if you have not been diagnosed with disease or experienced symptoms, you must make a claim to preserve your right to compensation if you develop an asbestos-related illness in the future.

File a Claim Now

Go to www.EFHAsbestosClaims.com to file a claim online or call 1-877-276-7311 to request a claim form be sent to you.

PAMELA ANDERSON AT 48

'I Feel Younger Every Day'

HER 'WILD AND CRAZY' DAYS BEHIND HER, THE SEXY STAR IS FOCUSING ON FAMILY, HEALTH AND DOING GOOD

Aging is tough for women in Hollywood, even if they didn't *rise to fame as a "*Baywatch babe" and grace the cover of Playboy 13 times. So how is Pamela Anderson, 48, dealing with the approach of the big 5-0? "It is what it is," she says, laughing. "I'm the last to try Botox—but I did, and I felt like my eyes sunk into my head so far that I didn't look like me! I embrace my age. It's about feeling great with what you have."

And she has a lot. Proud mom to Brandon, 19, and Dylan, 17, her sons with ex-husband Tommy Lee, she is an animal activist, has an online cooking show, The Sensual Vegan, and has written a book, Raw, which combines photos and poetry. Doctors have prescribed a new drug regimen for the hepatitis C she's battled since 1999, and "I feel like I'm getting 20 years back," she says. And though she hasn't dated seriously since her divorce from third husband Rick Salomon in April, "I'm not hiding in a corner," she says. Anderson talked with People*'s Liz McNeil about how she lives now.*

EMMA DUNLAVEY/JME PHOTO

1. "I only knew him four days before I married him," says Anderson of Tommy Lee (with her and Brandon in 1997). "It really was love at first sight." 2. "I didn't raise them in the spotlight," says Anderson (with Brandon in 2015) of her boys. "I built my life around them." 3. Her new book is a "behind-the-scenes" look at her "wild times" in words and pictures. "It was a real arts-and-crafts project," she says.

How does it feel to be 48?
I actually feel like I'm looking younger and younger! Sixteen years ago I was told hep C was a death sentence. But with the new drugs that can eradicate the virus, I could be cured within the month.

How has living with the disease affected you?
It was a dark cloud, and I think there was a fear of giving it to someone else, the fear of did anybody really love me. So I'm excited and hopeful.

Do you have any models for aging gracefully?
I love Jane Fonda and Brigitte Bardot. A little bit of maintenance is good. It's hard, because you're expected to look a certain way and you're photographed all the time. My niece showed me a picture, and I said, "I look terrible," and she goes, "Auntie Pam, nobody can look good all the time." Thank you, Kylie!

'Despite the mistakes I've made, I have incredible kids'

What's it like having teenage boys?
I've always been around difficult men, so they don't scare me! They're wonderful. Brandon is going to a university. He's gorgeous and an artist. Dylan has one more year in high school. He plays guitar, is a semi-pro surfer and a math whiz. They're perfect gentlemen.

How did you keep them grounded?
We didn't drag them down red carpets. I brought them to the Baywatch set, and their soccer games were in my contract.

Did they grow up knowing you were famous?
When they were at surf camp, they came home and said, "Mom, are you Pamela Anderson for real?" They used to say, "My dad's a rock star and my mom rescues animals." They didn't really know what I did.

Were you a strict parent?
I made them sign a contract before they got a car: no drinking and driving and no disrespecting of girls. I don't know if I brought around the best role models, but they've had a colorful life.

Examples?
Once at Hugh Hefner's they came out to the car and said, "Mom, do you know what Hef does for a living? He takes pictures of naked girls!" I said, "Oh my gosh, let's get out of here!"

Are they close to their dad?
Yes, they go on tour with him. They're grateful to be born out of true love. Tommy was the love of my life. But we're good friends now.

Do you want to fall in love again?
I'm not ready to go there right now. I want to see how this medicine works, and I'm focusing on my kids, my puppies and my foundation [pamelaandersonfoundation.org], which supports human, animal and environmental rights. I've said to myself I won't date anyone till after Christmas. Then, watch out! ●

HURRICANE KATRINA 10 YEARS LATER

NEW LIVES, NEW HOPE

It's been a decade since one of the most devastating storms in U.S. history decimated New Orleans and surrounding areas. Much work remains to be done, but these survivors show how life goes on

Written by RAY ROGERS Reported by CAITLIN KEATING and ROSE MINUTAGLIO

For (from left) Lillie, Burnell and Keasha, the lower Ninth Ward Market is a labor of love.

A Shopkeeper Comes Home

BURNELL COTLON

One of the areas hardest hit by Katrina, New Orleans's Lower Ninth Ward remains one of the slowest to recover. There wasn't even a grocery store until last year, when Burnell Cotlon, 48, opened the Lower Ninth Ward Market for locals who, otherwise, had to take three buses to get to Walmart. "People come in and just start crying because they're so happy we made it happen," says Cotlon, who runs the store with wife Keasha, 38. (His mom, Lillie, 70, cooks up po'boys in the kitchen.) The market's become the heart of the community, with young and elderly alike congregating outside. And while Cotlon has invested his life's savings in the business, which has yet to turn a profit, he's grateful to make payroll and keep the shelves stocked. "It's hard work," he says. "But this is bigger than us."

A Baby Born by Flashlight

SAGE MADISON POST

Pregnant and waiting out the storm at Keesler Medical Center in Biloxi, Miss., Stephenie Post felt her water break just as the power went out. Ingenuity saved the day. She was moved to the ICU, where another patient was hooked up to a generator-powered ventilator. "When the time came, we disconnected it and manually ventilated that patient while we used the generator for the equipment for Stephenie's C-section," recalls Dr. Andrew Allen, 44, chief resident for obstetrics at the time. Seven flashlights and three headlamps provided just enough light for doctors to quickly—and safely—deliver a daughter, Sage Madison Post. Now 10, the happy kid "thinks her wavy hair came from being in a hurricane," Stephenie, 36, says with a laugh.

"They had so many flashlights, it lit up the room, so I felt safe," recalls Post of Sage's birth (right).

"We're strong," says Dabney. "Let's smile and celebrate another 10 years."

A Jazzman Keeps the Music Alive

SULLIVAN DABNEY

Just two weeks before Katrina hit, Sullivan Dabney, 70, put the finishing touches on painstaking renovations to his home. After it was heartbreakingly destroyed in the storm, the lifelong New Orleans resident would, for years, come by regularly just to care for the lawn. "I cut the grass for a home that I wanted so badly to be living in," Dabney recalls. That all changed when the St. Bernard Project rebuilt the jazz musician's home five years ago. Today, Dabney, a granddad of five, says, "I give back by going to different schools every month to entertain the kids and keep the music going. New Orleans wouldn't be New Orleans if it wasn't for the music."

Boots was unable to walk after his paws were so badly injured.

A Furry Victim Gives Back BOOTS

When rescuers spotted Boots knee-deep in a flooded field, the skin was almost entirely ripped off the dog's paws. "I watched him kiss the technicians changing the bandages on his mangled feet," recalls Susan Juergensen, 47, who had driven to New Orleans to help animals in need. Boots, now 12 and fully recovered, returned with her to Phoenix, where every Wednesday the golden retriever-chow chow mix works as a "kitty nanny," socializing with kittens awaiting adoption. Says Arizona Humane Society spokeswoman Bretta Nelson, 37: "Boots is a survivor who paid it forward for other animals."

A Survivor (Finally) Gets a Roof over Her Head

SHAWN McNEIL

"This is my mom right here, and there is my dad—such good memories," says Shawn McNeil, 48, pointing to framed pictures that line the walls of her home in the storm-ravaged area of Gordon Plaza, built on a Superfund site in the Press Park neighborhood. The memories are what keep her going, as family members all either perished or fled town after Katrina, just like the majority of her neighbors. After years of homelessness, McNeil was, in July, able to move back into her childhood house. She is grateful. "Before I had to worry about food and shelter, and now I just have to worry about food."

"I GREW UP IN THIS HOUSE. I HAVE THE STRUCTURE, BUT I NEED TO FILL IT WITH LOVE" —McNEIL

"We grew strong together in the storm," says Bryan of Allison (right, in 2006).

Finding Love in the Storm

ALLISON AND BRYAN CONDON

The terror of Katrina had a silver lining for Allison and Bryan Condon. Both 17 at the time, they were holed up at Memorial Medical Center while their respective mothers—first responders—tended to storm victims. "When the levees broke, the generators flooded out, and the emergency power died," recalls Allison, 27, an interior designer. "As days passed, the situation got more dire, and Bryan made sure nothing happened to me." The anniversary of the catastrophe that bonded them now holds joy for the couple, who wed in 2012 and returned to the hospital—renamed Ochsner Baptist Medical Center this summer—to deliver son Jackson Joseph, born July 28. "He's perfect," says Allison.

The Hero Who Rescued 400

KENNY BELLAU

Returning from a road race abroad, cyclist Kenny Bellau, 47, made it home three days after Katrina hit and raced to help. While his fiancée, Candy, 47, manned a message board where people searched for missing loved ones, Bellau set out on a powerboat to rescue survivors. "I had heard stories of people who had pets not being allowed on rescue boats," he says. "I took every living thing that wanted to come." The horror of all he saw nearly cost Bellau his relationship: "I suffered from PTSD, and Candy was a victim of that." But she didn't give up hope. "She kept a close eye on me. A year and a half after the storm, we got back together," he says. The pair wed in 2014.

Teaching by Example JAMAR McKNEELY

A teacher at New Orlean's Edna Karr High School, Jamar McKneely sent his class home as Katrina began to blow in. He wouldn't see most of his students again for months. But when the school reopened the following January, he was there to greet them. "I wanted there to be some normalcy and a sense of hope for them," says McKneely, 38, who went on to become CEO and cofounder of InspireNOLA Charter Schools. His legacy thrives in his former pupils, several of whom are now teachers themselves. "For many of us, he's the dad we never had," says Jahquille Ross, 23, who teaches second grade at a nearby school. "He motivated me to not only go to college, but to come back to New Orleans after and help our youth who really need it."

A HEALING HOUND

Girl's Best Friend

WHEN ELLE SHAHEEN RECEIVED A DIABETES ALERT DOG, SHE NOT ONLY GAINED HER INDEPENDENCE BUT ALSO A LOYAL COMPANION BY ANA CALDERONE

Her family will never forget the day in 2007 when 8-year-old Elle Shaheen was taken to Boston Children's Hospital and learned the reason for her erratic behavior and dramatic weight loss: She had type 1 diabetes. "It was the worst day," says her mom, Stefany. "I didn't know if she was going to be able to live a healthy, normal life."

Elle's life was anything but normal for the next 5½ years, during which she endured multiple hospital visits and experimental treatments. Then, at a Congressional hearing for juvenile diabetes, the Shaheens found some relief. "I witnessed a dog alerting a little girl that something was wrong," says Stefany. Soon after, Elle, now 15, was paired with Coach, a yellow Labrador retriever who is trained to detect odors when a person's blood sugar is out of range. "He alerted me only a couple of hours after we had met," Elle recalls. "It was pretty magical." But for her mom, "it wasn't until I heard them coming back from bed after Coach had woken her up and she drank a glass of juice to treat her low blood sugar in the middle of the night that I thought, this is really going to work," says Stefany, who wrote the new book Elle & Coach (with coauthor and former People staffer Mark Dagostino), about their bond.

Now Coach, 3½, is part of the family, which also includes dad Craig Welch, Annah, 14, Caraline, 11, and William, 9. "Once on a school field trip, I was talking to a boy, and Coach all of a sudden got up and looked at the boy and started growling at him," Elle says. "It was like he was acting like my dad. He's very protective of me."

Stefany's new book Elle & Coach: Diabetes, the Fight for My Daughter's Life, and the Dog Who Changed Everything is out now.

Scream Queens

JAMIE LEE CURTIS, EMMA ROBERTS, LEA MICHELE, ABIGAIL BRESLIN

The original scream queen herself, Halloween's Curtis, describes this new horror-comedy from Glee and American Horror Story's Ryan Murphy as a "hybrid of wickedly funny and incredibly scary storytelling set in a sorority house on a college campus." As the dean, Curtis, 56, says she creates a "scenario of mayhem" by punishing an elitist sorority, "forcing them to accept anyone who wants to become a member." Whereas the sorority sisters may have contentious relationships with one another on the show, in real life, "I feel like we got very lucky," Michele, 29, says of finding a sense of sisterhood among her castmates, who film on location in New Orleans. "Everyone is unique and has a real sense of who they are. That eliminates a lot of competitiveness that might have come into the process."

Has it been easy to step into the role of Superman's cousin Kara? Kara is close to who I am. She's weird and awkward and still figuring things out. That's where I am right now as a woman. But playing [her alter ego] Supergirl is actually a stretch for me. I think it would be for anyone, to find that kind of bravery and really going forth to fight the fight.

What's the reaction been like from young female fans? I am always taken aback. Obviously I want them to be affected, and I want to be a role model for them, but it always really surprises me how enthusiastic and positive their reactions are. There are so many girls that are so excited already.

Heroes Reborn

ZACHARY LEVI, JACK COLEMAN, RYAN GUZMAN

"It's a continuation of the world that fans came to know and love in the original Heroes," Levi, 34, says of the new limited series. Original cast members like Coleman and Greg Grunberg pop up, but Guzman, 27, says Heroes Reborn takes place five years after the original series' finale, which aired in 2010. A "9/11-type attack" is blamed on the "Evos" (evolved humans), and "it's no longer okay to be someone with powers," he says. "The show gets crazy and dark."

ANGEL FROM HELL

JANE LYNCH, MAGGIE LAWSON CBS, NOV. 5

"Sometimes you have to mess stuff up to get it in the right order," Lynch says of playing Amy, who is (or is pretending to be?) a guardian angel. "She's openhearted, committed to the happiness of another," Lynch, 55, says of Amy. "And that's who I am, or at least who I aspire to be."

THE GRINDER ROB LOWE, FRED SAVAGE FOX, SEPT. 29

It apparently wasn't a stretch for Lowe to step into character as the star of a canceled legal drama who moves home to work at the family law practice. "After The West Wing, I dreamed of being in the trenches of a real presidential campaign," says Lowe, 51. "I probably thought I knew a lot more about it than I actually did."

FLESH AND BONE

SARAH HAY

STARZ, NOV. 8

Created by Breaking Bad writer and executive producer Moira Walley-Beckett, Flesh and Bone is more Black Swan than Center Stage. The limited series follows troubled Claire (Hay) as she navigates the cutthroat world of a New York City ballet company.

HAND OF GOD

DANA DELANY, RON PERLMAN AMAZON, SEPT. 4

Ron Perlman stars as a corrupt judge who, after facing a crisis, believes he can hear the voice of God. "The foundation he's built his kingdom on is crumbling," Perlman, 65, says of his character. "He's a powerful guy who's used to winning, but he's losing big-time."

The Muppets

KERMIT THE FROG, GONZO, MISS PIGGY

Just as they paid homage to variety shows in the late 1970s, Jim Henson's puppet characters have now taken on the mockumentary style made popular by shows like The Office, Parks and Recreation and Modern Family. The new series follows the fuzzy friends (including the recently split Kermit and Miss Piggy) as they work behind the scenes to produce Miss Piggy's fictional late-night talk show.

JAIMIE ALEXANDER, SULLIVAN STAPLETON

NBC, SEPT. 21

"I do my own stunts," former high school wrestler Alexander, 31, says of the physical demands of playing a woman who has lost her memory and is mysteriously tattooed with clues to crimes being solved by the FBI. "I get beaten up pretty bad, but you've just gotta go for it."

DR. KEN

KEN JEONG, DAVE FOLEY ABC, OCT. 2

"It's loosely based on my life," Jeong says of his sitcom. The actor, 46, earned his medical degree and was a practicing physician before going on to steal scenes in the Hangover film series and NBC's Community.

FOX, SEPT. 29

GRANDFATHERED'S John Stamos

THE ACTOR DISHES ON JUGGLING SHOWS—AND PLAYING A GRANDPA

You play a man who didn't realize he was a grandfather.
He's a George Clooney kinda guy—at least before he turned against everything he believed in and got married. He's a bachelor who finds out he has a son who has a daughter, which makes him a grandfather.

You're only 52. How do you feel about playing a grandpa?
It's funny and ironic. I played an uncle [on Full House]. That's the fun of the show.

How have you been handling balancing your role on this show and starring and producing the Full House spinoff Fuller House?
It's been a little multi-tasking. I did the bulk of the prep work on Fuller House and filmed the first couple of episodes before starting prep for this show. Then I went straight into Grandfathered. The studios are right down the street from each other, which is great. I go back and forth.

LIMITLESS

JAKE McDORMAN

CBS, SEPT. 22 Based in the world of the 2011 Bradley Cooper thriller of the same name, the new drama follows a failed musician (McDorman) who, after a mind-opening drug trip and an "ambiguous" run-in with Eddie (recurring guest star Cooper), becomes a consultant to the FBI, says McDorman, 29.

THE BASTARD EXECUTIONER

STEPHEN MOYER, KATEY SAGAL

FX, SEPT. 15

"I'm quite squeamish around blood, but I've gotten used to it," says former True Blood star Moyer, 45, who plays a devious official in the new medieval epic .

QUANTICO

JOHANNA BRADDY, YASMINE AL MASSRI, PRIYANKA CHOPRA ABC, SEPT. 27

"It's like Homeland meets Grey's Anatomy," Chopra, 33, says of the "high-paced thriller" in which she stars as an FBI recruit who is blamed for a terrorist attack. "It's like a whodunit," says the former Miss World, who is already an A-List Indian film star. "And it doesn't take your intelligence for granted."

RETURNING SHOWS

EMPIRE

TARAJI P. HENSON

FOX, SEPT. 23

When Empire premiered in January, its banner ratings took many by surprise—but not the show's star. "This is what happens when you have great material and a studio that's ready to take a risk and change the face of network television," says Henson, 44, who has promised season 2 will show "how these people became who they are."

FX, OCT. 12

Season 2 of the anthology series, which is inspired by the 1996 film of the same name, returns in an earlier era and with a new cast. Set in 1979, the new season explores "the impact that Vietnam had when everyone came back," says Danson, 67, who stars as a "kind of old-fashioned cowboy hero" and World War II veteran with a Vietnam-veteran son (Wilson). "There wasn't a murder in town for six years. And now there have been bodies hanging from trees."

HOMELAND

CLAIRE DANES

SHOWTIME, OCT. 4

"I think it's better than ever," Showtime president David Nevins, 49, has said of the CIA drama's fifth season, which is being shot in Berlin and will explore "cyberterrorism, privacy in a world of 24-hour surveillance and our tangled relationship with our enemies and allies."

SCANDAL

THE LEFTOVERS' Justin Theroux

THE ACTOR ON APOCALYPTIC STORY LINES—AND MARRIAGE TO JEN

Season 2 moves from Mapleton, N.Y., to Miracle, Texas. Why the change? It's a town where something miraculous has happened that's literally bordered by a fence. For my character and his insta-family, it's a fresh start. But it boxes them in—in a weird and wonderful way.

How is it playing a police chief in a postapocalyptic world? It's a tough character. Every time you get a new script, it's like, "Oh boy, it's going to go here." The walls to his struggles are high, but I enjoy it.

You recently got married to Jennifer Aniston. Was there a celebration on-set? I came back and the crew gave me a big cheer, so it was wonderful. It does feel different. I'm very happy. It's nice to be able to look down and see a new piece of jewelry on my finger.

THE AFFAIR
RUTH WILSON, DOMINIC WEST SHOWTIME, OCT. 4

In season 1 the story of the titular sin was told from the points of view of the two perpetrators. Season 2 incorporates the perspectives of the scorned spouses (Joshua Jackson and Maura Tierney). "There is no right answer," Jackson, 37, says of the four different recollections presented. "That's the fun of the show."

JANE THE VIRGIN
GINA RODRIGUEZ, JUSTIN BALDONI CW, OCT. 12

A baby! A kidnapping! A wedding! A lot is in store for Jane, whose newborn son was taken at the end of season 1. But Rodiguez, 31, says not even she knows exactly what's to come: "I'm excited to find out."

The Mindy Project
MINDY KALING, CHRIS MESSINA

"It was such a good feeling," Kaling, 36, says of her former Fox sitcom being picked up by Hulu. The actress is excited to focus on her character's pregnancy in the upcoming fourth season. "Pregnancy is such a sacred thing," she says. "So for this poorly behaved character to think she's, like, a protected class just because she had unprotected sex has been very fun to play."

TONY MANTUANO

Ham, Cheese & Tomato Bread

THE STAR CHEF IS SERVING UP THESE TASTY SNACKS AT THE 2015 U.S. OPEN TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS IN FLUSHING, NEW YORK

- 1 ripe plum tomato
- 6 slices baguette (about 1-in. thick)
- 6 thin slices Manchego cheese
- 6 thin slices serrano ham
- Extra-virgin olive oil, for drizzling
- Freshly ground black pepper

1. Cut the tomato in half and rub the cut side of one half against 3 slices of bread, pressing firmly until the juice of the tomato soaks into the bread. Repeat with the remaining tomato half and bread slices. Discard the juiced tomato.
2. Top each piece of tomato bread with cheese and ham. Drizzle with olive oil, season with black pepper, if desired, and serve.
Makes: 6 pieces
Prep time: 5 minutes

Expert Tip!
The key to this simple recipe is using the freshest bread and only the best seasonal ingredients, says Mantuano. "This is one of those perfect summer dishes."

Fruity Ice Pops

THE CHEF AND AUTHOR OF MARK BITTMAN'S KITCHEN MATRIX LETS YOU CHOOSE YOUR OWN FLAVOR ADVENTURE

Tomato Cucumber

Puree 1 lb. cored and quartered ripe tomatoes, 3/4 cup seeded and chopped cucumber, 2 tbsp. olive oil, 1 tbsp. sherry vinegar, 1 clove garlic, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 tsp. kosher salt and 1/4 tsp. freshly ground black pepper.

Lime Mojito

Cook 1/4 cup sugar and 1/4 cup water over medium-low heat, stirring occasionally until sugar dissolves. Puree with 1/3 cup rum, 1/2 cup fresh mint leaves, 1/3 cup lime juice and 1 cup water for about 30 seconds.

Directions

Pour mixture evenly into plastic ice-pop molds (or 4 to 6 disposable paper cups) and freeze. After an hour or so, insert a wooden stick into each cup and continue to freeze until solid, about 8 hours. To remove pops from their molds, run them under cool running water for a few seconds to loosen.

Makes: 8 pops
Prep time: 5 minutes, plus freezing

Cherry Vanilla

Puree 2 cups pitted fresh cherries, 3 tbsp. sugar, 2 tsp. lemon juice, 2 tsp. vanilla and 3/4 cup water.

Banana Peanut

Puree 2 medium bananas, 1 cup milk, 1/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup peanut butter and 1/2 tsp. vanilla for 30 seconds. Sprinkle 1 tsp. chopped roasted peanuts into each ice-pop mold before adding the banana mixture.

Fresh Walnut Tacos

THE AUTHOR OF THE 22-DAY REVOLUTION PUTS A VEGAN SPIN ON THE MEXICAN FAVORITE

- 2 cups walnuts
- 1½ tbsp. ground cumin
- 1 tbsp. ground coriander
- 2 tbsp. balsamic vinegar
- 1 tbsp. low sodium soy sauce
- ⅛ tsp. paprika
- ⅛ tsp. garlic powder
- ⅛ tsp. freshly ground black pepper
- 6 romaine lettuce leaves
- 1 avocado, chopped
- ½ cup cherry tomatoes, halved
- ½ tbsp. dried parsley
- Sea salt
- Juice of ½ lime

1. Combine the walnuts and next 7 ingredients in a food processor and pulse 6 to 7 times until crumbly but not over-blended.
2. Spread the walnut mixture evenly on the lettuce leaves, which serve as taco "shells." Top with chopped avocado, tomatoes, parsley, sea salt and freshly squeezed lime juice.

CHRISTINA AGUILERA'S
Carnival Birthday Bash

NOW THAT'S HOW YOU throw a Summer-time party! Christina Aguilera and fiancé Matthew Rutler invited their closest friends and family to celebrate their daughter Summer Rain's 1st birthday with an intimate carnival-themed soiree held in the backyard of their Los Angeles home on Aug. 22. The singer, 34, and the producer, 30, made sure the festivities were filled with Summer's favorite things, including Minnie Mouse, a bubble station, balloons and plenty of pink—the birthday girl's favorite color. Summer "has brought so much love into our family," Aguilera—whose son Max, 7, joined in on the fun—told People in February. "She's a very happy, content girl. Her smile lights up a room, and she melts Mama and Daddy's hearts."—GABRIELLE OLYA

1. Guests sang "Happy Birthday" during the backyard celebration. 2. One of three outfits Summer wore during her party. 3. A board listed fun facts about Summer. Her first words? "Book" and "Dada." 4. "She's easy to make smile," said Aguilera.

CAT CORA

What I Eat in a Day

THE 5'2" CHEF AND AUTHOR OF COOKING AS FAST AS I CAN, 48, FOLLOWS THE MEDITERRANEAN DIET. SHE SAYS, 'I EAT CLEAN, WHOLE FOODS'

Hydration
8 glasses of water

Breakfast
Green smoothie with spinach, chia seeds, 1 scoop protein powder, frozen berries, ½ banana and water

Snack
Apple and a small handful of raw almonds

Tip!
"I love that she added quinoa," says Glassman. "People think of it as a grain, but it's actually a seed packed with vitamins!"

Lunch
Chicken and quinoa salad over mixed greens with fresh lemon

Snack
Carrots and sliced cucumbers with 4 tbsp. hummus

Dinner
4-oz. lean turkey burger (with tomato, 4 slices of avocado and mustard) wrapped in lettuce. Side of sautéed veggies

Dessert
Greek yogurt parfait with berries and 1 tsp. agave

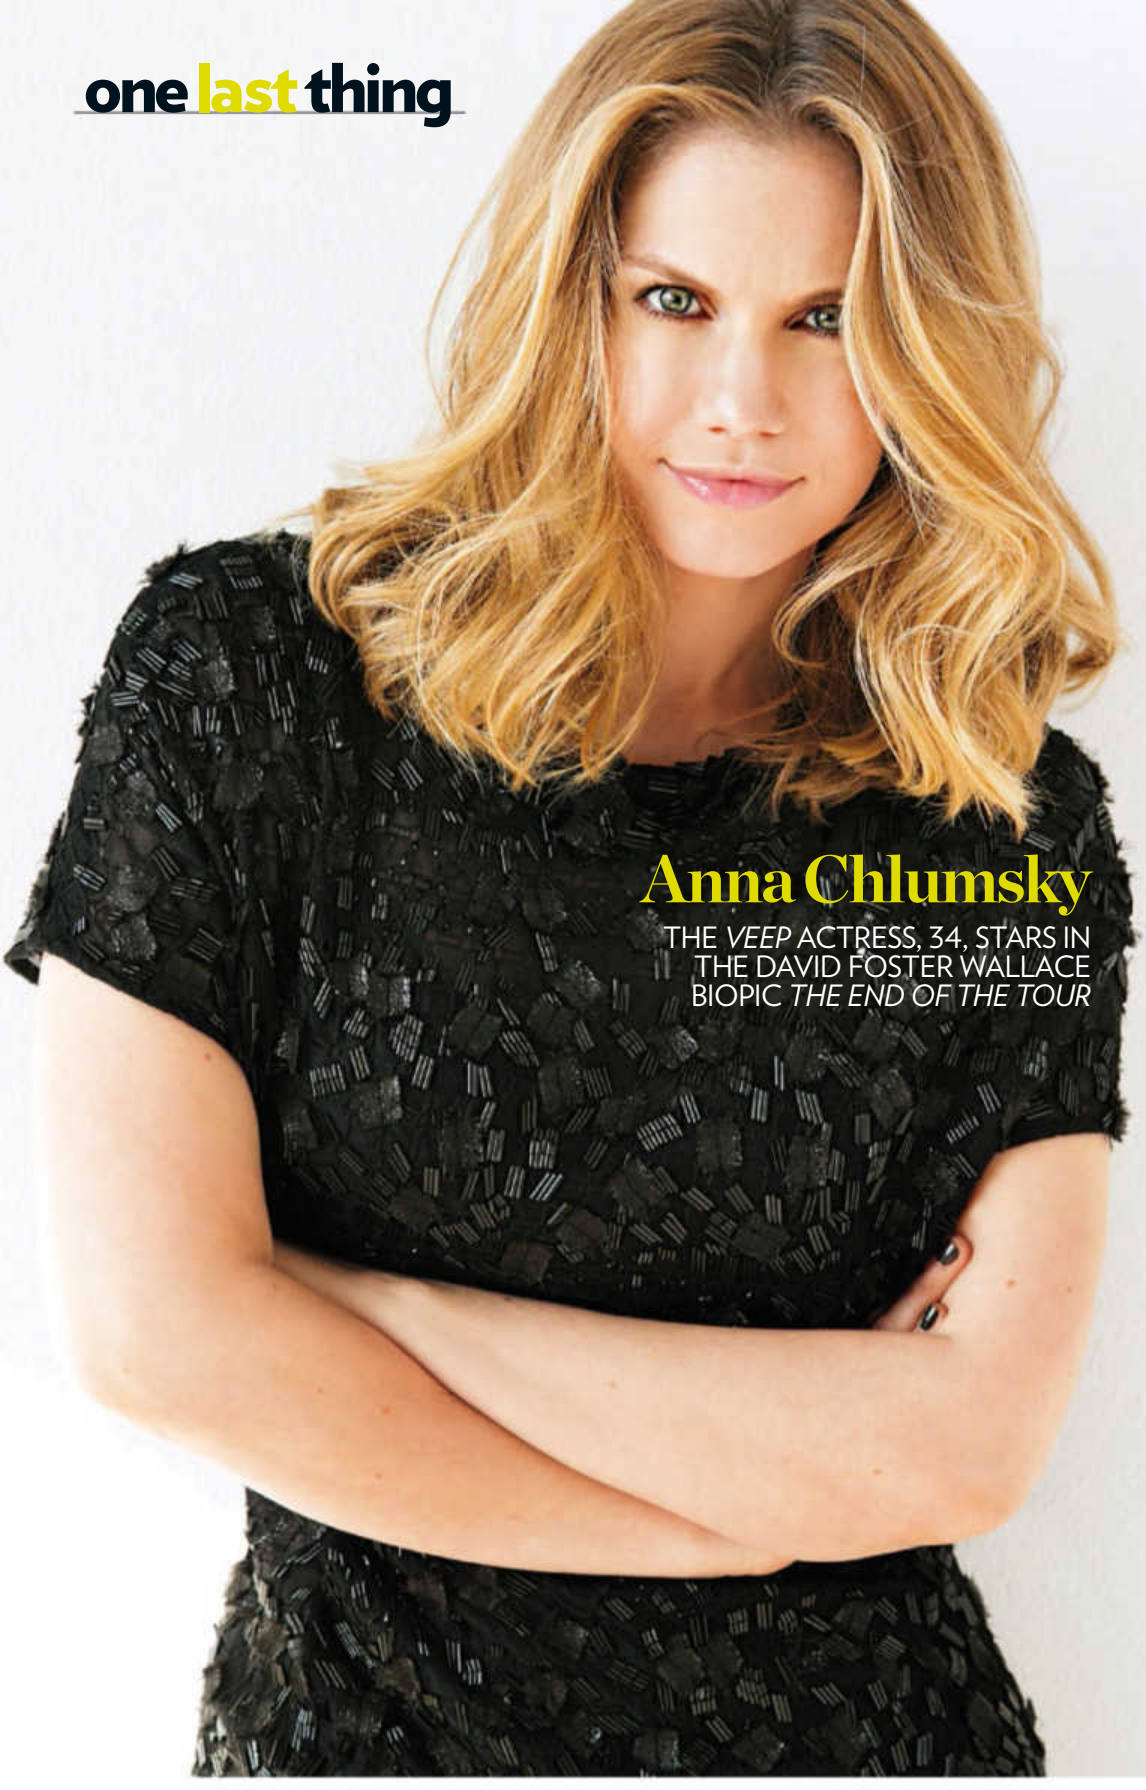

Total Calories: 1,329

The Verdict "Cat does an amazing job getting in her veggies," says dietitian Keri Glassman of nutritiouslife.com, who praises the chef's "nutrient loaded" lunch and lettuce-wrapped burger. Cora's snacks are equally excellent. "Hummus is an easy and satisfying snack that has got it all—protein, fiber, antioxidants—and it's clean, real food!" says Glassman. "This is a beautiful day of eating."

THE VEEP ACTRESS, 34, STARS IN THE DAVID FOSTER WALLACE BIOPIC THE END OF THE TOUR

Last family vacation
Croatia, last year. I have family that's from there, so I've always wanted to go. We happened to go when the World Cup opener was playing, which was amazing.

Last sport I played
I barely play sports. If you count soccer in the living room with my 2-year-old daughter [Penelope], that could qualify. She's also into helicopters and trees—anything nifty these days.

Last person I complimented
It's got to be my kid because I'm complimenting her all the time. She and I were eating lunch with her babysitter, and she gave her hair clip to her babysitter, so I said, "You're very generous!"

Last thing that made me laugh hysterically
When I saw the finale of Veep actually! I promise that's not something I made up. It's the best feeling to actually be a fan of the show you do.

Last good deed
I just opened a door for somebody today. That counts! Especially when you live in a city—I think we're all better for doing things like holding each other's doors and being polite.
